DR. HAINES' WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Legally Parted From Everett Physician Who Told Tale of Trip to the Far North

The climax to the Haines-Leitke domestic tangle, whose sensational features intrigued residents of Everett, took place today when it was learned that Mrs. Jennie A. Haines had been granted a divorce.

Mrs. Haines brought suit on the ground of unfaithfulness against Dr. George A. Haines, who she charged eloped with Mrs. Natalie Rogan Leitke, former Somerville nurse.

Dr. Haines denied the charges, declaring he had been on a dash to northern Ontario with a half-breed guide, to recuperate his shattered health.

Pending the hearing of the Haines divorce, Mrs. Leitke, who lived in Burlington, brought suit against her husband Rudolph, charging cruel and abusive treatment.

The nurse testified she was married in Massachusetts to Leitke, former member of the Yankee Division, but his alleged cruelty took place in New York.

SPANISH FOREIGN LEGION RUSHED TO MOROCCO FRONT

Gibraltar, June 1.—The Spanish Foreign Legion which crossed the Straits of Gibraltar yesterday from Ceuta to Algeciras, has received rush orders from Spanish army headquarters to proceed to Melilla where the Spanish troops have been suffering serious defeats since Sunday, says the Central News.

The Foreign Legion is proceeding in special trains for Malaga, whence it will embark for Melilla.

FIND QUINCY WAR NURSE DEAD ON WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Margaret F. Garey, historian of the Quincy American Legion, was found dead in bed today at her home on Hancock street in that city. She was to have celebrated today the fifth anniversary of her marriage to Dr. Charles W. Garey, following a brief romance.

Mrs. Garey was a nurse in the British Army during the war and went to Quincy in 1917 to recuperate from her exhaustive labors. Here she met Dr. Garey and in a short time they were married.

DETROIT PRIEST SHOOTS BOY CAUGHT ROBBING POOR BOX

Detroit, June 1.—Rev. Father Michael G. Esper, pastor of St. Boniface Catholic Church, today shot and slightly wounded Harold Smith, fourteen years old of Sudbury, Wis., as the boy made a dash for liberty after, it is alleged, he was caught in the act of robbing poor boxes in the church.

The priest told the police he was awakened by an alarm bell. He took a revolver and entered the church where he says he found the lad with two poor boxes in his hands. As he was conducting the lad from the church the youth made a break for freedom.

When Harold refused to halt, the priest fired three shot, one of them grazing the boy's arm. The boy was turned over to the police.

MARKS 72,650 FOR DOLLAR, BERLIN FOOD PRICES BOOSTED

Berlin, June 1, (A.P.)—The German Mark continued to drop in the Exchange Market here today. Opening at about 69,500 to the dollar it had by noon reached 72,650.

Cost of foodstuffs has become virtually double that of the first part of May. Lard has gone up more than 100 per cent.

Flour recently jumped to four-fold figures, and Berlin bakers are meeting to decide what they shall charge for bread to the poor, this being always sold cheaper on presentation of a governmental bread card.

"Phil" for Whom She Is Alleged to Have Tried Suicide Is Cambridge Clerk

The mysterious "Phil" in the attempted suicide of sixteen-year-old Doris Aubrey of Watertown, is Philip Lazarus, twenty-one years old, of No. 19 Summer street, Cambridge.

This was announced today by the Cambridge police, who have questioned him.

Lazarus is employed in a provision store on Inman square, Cambridge. The police say he and Doris have been "keeping company" for the past six months.

Doris leaped into the Charles river from the Larz Anderson bridge near Harvard Stadium. She was pulled out of the water by Professor James B. Conant of Harvard University.

"I am sorry now that I jumped in. I want to live."

Thus the girl showed change of heart in Cambridge City Hospital

D'ANNUNZIO IS SAFE; CANCELLED AIR TRIP

Paris, June 1 (I. N. S.).—The rumor that Gabriele D'Annunzio, famous Italian poet, was missing on an airplane flight from the Riviera to Paris, was cleared up today when word was received that he had never started for this city.

Italian residents of Paris are planning a great Garibaldi celebration tomorrow. D'Annunzio was expected to fly here and speak.

British Skipper to Quit Rum Running, $1,000,000 to Good

Norfolk, Va., June 1.—Just one more successful voyage as a rum runner with a full cargo of Scotch and English whiskies is the ambition of the master of the British steam yacht Istar, now off Virginia Capes, according to the story the skipper told bankers when he came ashore to exchange a quarter of a million dollars for British currency.

This final trip, says the captain, will enable him to retire with $1,000,000 profits.

EX-GROCERY CLERK MADE 30 MILLION

Authorities to Investigate the Financial Crash of Jones, Baker Company, Brokers

The meteoric rise of "Bill" Jones, country grocery clerk, to multi millionaire and curb king of this country was one of the chief angles of talk in Boston today about the sudden bankruptcy of his great brokerage house of Jones & Baker, whose Boston office is at No. 68 Devonshire street.

William R. Jones is a heavy stockholder in several New York banks. He is reputed to be worth at least $30,000,000 in his own name.

His firm had an advertising budget of $1,000,000 a year. Its ink bill alone for its main house in New York and numerous branches ran to $50 a week.

The company has 10,000 customers. Manager Noble B. Elwell of the

"PROVIDENCE" ONLY CLEW TO SUNKEN SHIP MYSTERY

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 1.—A submerged two-master, identity unknown, furnished police and harbor officials with a mystery today when her crew of 3 feet, or water, just outside the harbor, with only the tip of a mast exposed. Lewis Odell, harbor patrolman who discovered the vessel, was furnished the only clew thus far, a block of hard wood, trimmed with brass and bearing the name "Providence," which was brought to the surface with grappling hooks.

END FREIGHT CAR SHORTAGE; ROADS RECOVER FROM STRIKE

Washington, June 1, (C.N.S.)—The bad effects of last year's railroad strike apparently have been overcome so far as they relate to freight cars, a statement of the American Railway Association today indicates.

It says that despite the fact that loading of revenue freight has recently attained new high records this is the first time since September, 1, 1922, that the number of surplus freight cars has exceeded the car shortage.

The statement indicates that the railroads have been unusually active in repairing all classes o. freight equipment.

FORMER GROCERY STORE CLERK MADE 30 MILLION IN STOCKS

Boston office estimates that from 800 to 1,000 accounts were maintained at the Devonshire street branch.

The amount of money involved in the bankruptcy is estimated at $35,000,000, but no accurate figures can be determined until a final accounting.

The firm declares it is not insolvent; that it expects to pay 100 cents on the dollar.

The Merchants' National Bank of Boston is one of several big banks holding outstanding loans of the firm. Receiver Alfred C. Coxe, Jr., of New York, appointed by Federal Judge Goddard to take charge of Jones & Baker affairs on the bankruptcy petition of three creditors, says the firm owed banks about $2,500,000.

BANKS ARE SECURED.

All the bank loans are said to be fully secured by good collateral.

New York legal authorities took instant notice of the bankruptcy. Assistant District Attorneys Wintner and Unger hurried to the Jones & Baker main offices at No. 50 Broad street, Manhattan, and conferred with the receiver and partners.

Mr. Wintner said he was there to see that the firm's books were conserved. He declared:

"You know what happened in the Fuller case. We were not able to get the books for nine months after."

In Chicago, where there was a big J. & B. branch, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe has begun investigation to determine whether "bucket shop" practises, in violation of the Illinois Blue Sky law, were in any way responsible for the closing of the Chicago branch.

William R. Jones, head of the firm, was born in Streator, Ill., in 1880.

HAD METEORIC RISE.

At the age of twenty he was a grocer's clerk in Wheaton, Ill.! But he was bound for big affairs. Three years later he was on his way upward as clerk and salesman for a Chicago department store. There he had his first contact with big city life and its possibilities.

He went on the road for a wholesale jewelry firm. Then he went into the "Street." His first brokerage job was with Donald A. Campbell of Chicago. He left him to enter the Chicago brokerage office of Charles A. Stoneham & Co.

This was the "Charlie" Stoneham, owner of the New York Giants baseball club, who has been heard as a witness in the bankruptcy hearings involving the firm of E. M. Fuller & Co.

The Bishop Investigating Service of New York, which has been looking into the J. & B. history, says Jones became Chicago office manager for Stoneham concern but that he came into disagreement with Stoneham over their methods of business and quit, setting up in the brokerage business for himself.

This was eleven years ago. The house of Jones & Baker was formed, as a partnership "composed of William R. Jones and Jackson B. Sells.

Just where the name "Baker" comes in is not made clear.

The firm set up headquarters in New York. It has branches in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland and Kansas City, Mo.

Counsel for the three petitioners who caused the bankruptcy says Jones & Baker handled between 35 and 40 per cent. of the accounts of the New York Curb market.

The Curb had been secretly investigating affairs of the firm for a week. The claims of the three creditors total $5,500. The creditors' counsel said the bankruptcy proceedings were taken to prevent disorderly liquidation of assets, which would mean ruin to the firm's customers.

STATEMENT BY FIRM.

The firm has issued the following statement:

"A petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed against our firm today, and Alfred Coxe, Jr., was appointed receiver by Judge Henry W. Goddard. The petition contains the allegation that we are insolvent. Such is not the fact.

"We believe that with a careful and prompt liquidation of our assets none of our customers will suffer a loss, and that we will be able to pay 100 cents on the dollar. We sincerely hope that our customers and creditors will defer action until they receive reports of the examination which we ordered of our business to be made immediately, and until the receiver is in a position to, and does make a report of the condition of our affairs."

AIDS HUSBAND IN GIRL'S SUIT

years out of William Lapham Saunders, banker, churchman and Y. M. C. A. director of Yonkers, if the wife of the millionaire and mother of his five children can prevent it.

Mrs. Saunders faced the young woman who has confessed that for six years she shared the affections of her wealthy husband, and obviously enjoyed Miss Thorne's embarrassment. The unexpected appearance of Mrs. Saunders on the side of her husband when Supreme Court Justice Frank L. Young resumed proceedings at Ossining was a shock to the slender, brown-eyed complainant.

Folding her arms, the banker's wife, a capable, matronly woman, a dozen or more years Miss Thorne's senior, listened intently while the former instructress of her children described a "love contract" she and Saunders entered into on May 11, 1921, by which she was to receive $25,000.

PHILANTHROPIST FLUSHED.

Short, his blue eyes blinking nervously, the Yonkers philanthropist flushed and moved uncomfortably as Mrs. Saunders vouchsafed him what was meant to be a reassuring gaze.

When Miss Thorne told of a budget she had drawn up at his request to show that she required $3,000 a year on which to live, Saunders was in need of all the comfort he could find in the sympathetic eyes of his wife.

Miss Thorne has testified that her affair with Saunders began in 1915 when Mrs. Saunders employed her as a tutor. The banker would hug her as often as his wife's back was turned, she declared.

When she left the Saunders employ the Yonkers man pursued her to New York, she said.

DIDN'T KEEP HIS WORD

"He didn't keep his word to provide for me," testified Miss Thorne, "and in October, 1920, $50,000 was mentioned when he became anxious to know how much I needed for my wants."

It was learned that Mrs. Saunders became aware of the affair accidentally while going through a check book of her husband's, questioned him, and he finally made a clean breast of it. When Miss Thorne threatened to bring suit Mrs. Saunders refused to permit her husband to settle the case quietly.

The banker signed the contract with Miss Thorne, he declared, when she threatened to expose him to his aged mother. The contents of the document follow:

THE LOVE CONTRACT.

"I, William Lapham Saunders, in consideration of six years' friendship and companionship with Miss Elizabeth Frances Thorne, and wishing to show my esteem and kindly feeling toward the said Elizabeth Frances Thorne, and in consideration of the surrender of all letters written by me to her, agree to settle on her the sum of $25,000, to be paid within two to five years, according to the conditions of my holdings and ability to pay.

"It is my desire that she should be comfortably cared for, and I hereby agree to pay her $200 monthly until I settle the said $25,000 on her. I do all this as proof of my friendly interest in her.

(Signed)

"WILLIAM LAPHAM SAUNDERS."

Hall told her she had proved her case, but a question arose as to whether she would have to live in this State three years before she could obtain a decree.

The case has been dismissed without prejudice.

Leitke had threatened a $50,000 suit against Dr. Haines, on the ground that the physician had come between the Leitkes.

Mrs. Haines brought suit for divorce November 4, 1922, and has been granted a decree by Judge Morton in East Cambridge Court.

Dr. Haines disappeared from his home at No. 641 Broadway, Everett, last December. At the same time the nurse left the home of her parents in Burlington.

MANY KILLED BY CYCLONE IN ITALY

Rome, June 1 (AP).—A cyclone in the Simplon region of northern Italy has caused much damage in many localities, according to advices to the Central News. Many houses were wrecked, several bridges destroyed and international railway traffic was greatly hindered. Four persons are reported killed at Vogogna, two at Ossola and several at Domodossola.

STEAL "DOG CART," THEN ABANDON IT

Who stole the dog-cart?

Early today thieves broke into a garage on Arlington street and made off with the Ford car, the property of the Animal Rescue League, used to collect old, stray or unwanted dogs. The "dog cart" was found abandoned on Dorset street, South Boston, by Patrolman Oscar Hand, of Station 12.

Police are inclined to think that the auto was taken by a gang of rowdies, who were bent on joy-riding. The machine was not damaged.

tain a new trial for three Portuguese Bravas serving time, for an alleged criminal attack on the girl.

After asserting that neither John Dias nor Joseph Andrews had been with him the night of the alleged attack, Gomes plunged into the story of his affair with the girl.

He was then subjected to a rigid examination by the judge and by District Attorney Stanley P. Hall of Bristol County. The attack occurred at Buzzard's Bay.

WAS WITH STRANGERS.

The confession was made to Attorney William H. Lewis at Charlestown Prison.

In it Gomes said: "Neither Dias nor Andrews were with me. I was with two strangers I have never seen before or since.

"I met Gertrude Butler through her friend, William Eldridge. He first made arrangements for me to meet her. I had three meetings with her, the third being on the night of the alleged attack. I paid Eldridge $3 each time I met her.

"The day of the night of the trouble I was rowing two strangers, men of my own race, shouted to me. I went back and saw a fellow I knew and sold moonshine at dances. They said to me 'Can you fix us up with some wom'n?'

"I said 'yes' and went to fruit store to meet Eldredge, who said that he was going to a dance that night and would meet me at 11:30 at the schoolhouse.

"We went to the schoolhouse at the appointed time. Eldred and Gertrude came up. We in an machine we had got after leaving the movie show. None of us used force. We were there arrangement with Eldridge. None of us had any guns.

SAYS GIRL MADE THEM.

"Under Eldridge's direction one of the fellows whose name was Joe drove us out on Collins'en road. There we stopped. I and his friend John refused to pay any money.

"Everyone got out the car but the girl. I went in talked with her a while and then sat. I gave Eldridge $3. Then he the other two had an argument.

"She said, 'What's matter?'

"A few minutes she said, 'Well, I'll make it for them.' They refused to go the car and we drove away."

SUMMER DREAM, LASKER CALLS SHIP BID

Washington, June 1.—A thorough investigation has convinced the Shipping Board, Chairman Lasker announced today, that there is no prospect that the bid of more than a million dollars made by John W. Slack of Silver Creek, N. Y., for the board's merchant fleet would ever be executed if it were accepted.

An inquiry on the subject was conducted by the Shipping Board in conjunction with other government departments with which Mr. Slack has had business transactions, with the result, Mr. Lasker said, that the offer had been definitely classed as a "Summer dream."

This conclusion will be communicated to the special committee of the Shipping Board now sitting in New York and before which Mr. Slack has been invited.

The Silver Creek bidder will be free, the chairman said, to appear and give any further details of his proposal and backing that he may desire.

60 Billion Smokes Northcliffe's Ghost Baruch Said It First Encourage Modern Work
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

IN THIS country 450,000 farms produce tobacco. Americans factories manufacture sixty thousand million cigarettes. The government got three hundred million dollars from the tobacco tax last year.

Probably the tobacco is worth all the trouble and all the money. Men that have only recently learned to walk on their hind legs, and haven't yet learned to think, feel the need of something foolish. Of all foolish things tobacco is the least harmful.

SIR A. CONAN DOYLE says he has a message from Lord Northcliffe's ghost saying, "Only spiritual reform can save the world from plunging headlong into a catastrophe that will make the World War seem insignificant."

That's a fake message. If Northcliffe sent any message through A. Conan Doyle, it would be, "Don't be an ass."

JESUITS WORK hard before they are admitted to the order. And they promise to lead what the average man would call a dull life, taking three vows, of poverty, chastity and obedience. However, you can be poor, chaste and obedient, and still get fun out of life.

Father De Heredia of the Jesuits finds pleasure in making spiritualists ridiculous. He makes "spirit" photographs in broad daylight, any kind you want. He makes a skull talk, click its teeth, and bring messages from the other world, as accurate as any "spiritualist" message.

NOTHING IS NEW, but the oftener good thoughts are repeated the better. President Harding, quoting the statement that a nation cannot survive "half-slave and half-free," credited Lincoln. Lincoln credited it to Roger A. Pryor. Somebody said it ahead of Pryor.

The President on Decoration Day said that in the next war the dollars must be drafted, and Industrialists along with their dollars. Bernard M. Baruch, who ran the War Industries Board, said in his report to Congress two years ago that in case of war "there ought to be not alone a mobilization of man power, but of things and dollars."

IT IS HARD to tell where an idea starts. Milton and Tennyson borrowed from Dante. Dante got some of his ideas of hell, including the lion and the wolf in the forest, from the writings of an obscure monk.

The difficulty with drafting "man power" and "dollars and things" is this: The man power, which means you conscript, is dizorganized, scattered. "Dollars and things" are well organized, represented by clever corporation attorneys, backed by the constitution that guarantees protection to property, represented also by many men on the bench that will say it is all right to a nation to take a young man's life, but all wrong to take an old man's money.

There will be several wars fought before "dollar and things" are put on the low level of "man power" when it comes to drafting.

A FRENCH EXPERT declared that many gothic antiques in New York's Metropolitan Museum are frauds, and many American private collections have paid big prices for frauds of the same kind.

According to that expert, Mons. Cornillion, the French manufacturer of "antique" fakes, said that they would do "for these dirty Americans."

"Foolish Americans" might be a better term.

The way to avoid being cheated in antiques is to spend your money encouraging and buying the work of men that are alive and struggling.

GERMAN MARKS had another fall, to 70,175 for $1. This is a record so far. The German Reichsbank adds to the gayety by printing 437 billions more paper marks. War does not pay.

MRS. FRANK C. HENDERSON

'PEEPER' FREED, CO-EDS FORM 'GUN BRIGADE'

Geneva, N. Y., June 1. (I. N. S.)—Because the city authorities permitted a self-confessed "Peeping Tom" caught spying in William Smith College Co-eds, to escape with a suspended sentence the college now plans a "shot-gun brigade" to take the law into its own hands.

Perched on a tree on the college campus, Edward Buckley was discovered as he watched some of William Smith's prettiest don silken pajamas for the night.

Police, answering a hurry call, arrested Buckley, but when in court Buckley received a suspended sentence.

"I drank too much squirrel whiskey and it sent me into the tree tops," he explained.

"This is the last time I shall ever call upon the city courts to punish a man," declared Dean Barbara Walker today.

"I shall have a shotgun and the next man I catch will draw a buckshot warrant. If anyone thinks I'm not capable to handle a gun, let me add I killed a rabbit stone dead at fifty yards the other day."

COOPERS GUILTY OF INCOME TAX FRAUDS

Dubuque, Iowa, June 1.—A. A. & W. F. Cooper, nationally known vehicle manufacturers, face possible prison terms and heavy fines for evading Federal income taxes after their conviction by a jury in United States District Court here on a conspiracy indictment, charging that they submitted fraudulent returns for three successive years beginning in 1918.

CHINESE LOAD FAIR CAPTIVE WITH GIFTS

New York, June 1.—Bringing back the story that she was kidnaped by Chinese bandits and released because she had a special letter from Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, which influenced one of the bandits, a former Chinese student in the United States, Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, of Roslyn, L. I., arrived today on the steamship Samaria.

Mrs. Henderson said that when at Shanghai she went inland to a little town called Soo Chow. She employed guides to take her to a shop where ivories were on sale. There she found herself in a silk draped room. Suddenly the door was locked and she was surrounded by bandits.

"They were perfect sheiks," she said. "But they were also gallant, for when they discovered the letter from Secretary Hughes they—not only released me, but helped me to catch a train back to Shanghai and presented me with gifts."

DEFENDERS GAIN IN FOREST FIRE FIGHT

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—The forest fire situation near White River, Ont., and in northern Minnesota, is better today, according to reports reaching here. Dying down of the wind and heroic efforts by townspeople saved White River temporarily, although the town is not safe yet. In Minnesota, the fire near Wilson Lake, at the boundary of the Superior National Forest was checked by 145 State and national forest rangers.

KLAN TRIED TO BEAT DEVER

Spent $50,000 in the Chicago the Campaign Against Former Woburn Man

Atlanta, Ga., June 1.—Imperial Wizard Evans of the Ku Klux Klan spent $50,000 to defeat Judge William F. Dever in the recent Chicago mayoralty campaign, the petition for a receivership for the klan filed in Fulton County Superior Court here charges.

David M. Rittenhouse, chief petitioner, charges Wizard Evans used the money trying to influence Chicago newspapers in opposition to the election of the former Woburn, Mass. boy.

The petition alleges that the receipts of the Klan for 1921 were $900,000 and previous to that time wer about $1,000,000. This money, the petitioners say, was squandered by a group of executive officers, on large salaries for themselves and such follies as the attempted defeat of Judge Dever.

Wizard Evans is in Washington today and all of the high national officers are on their way to the capital to attend a secret meeting. According to dispatches, Evans said today that the legal proceedings begun at Atlanta would form no part of the conference program there, nor have any effect on the "klonclliums" plans.

The petition alleged that Evans and W. J. Simmons, founder and emperor, Simmons, founder and emperor, conspired to make Simmons' salary for life $1,000 a month, a sum which, it was said, his wife was to receive after his death; that Evans took $400,000 of Klan funds and devoted it to his own use by depositing it in banks throughout the country subject to check by himself, Simmons and two other Klan organizers; that Simmons, when wizard, collected $750,000 in the name of the Klan and deposited it to his individual credit; that on April 1, 1923, only $127,000 remained of approximately $1,000,000 annual revenue of the organization.

It charged that $50,000 was used to further a political campaign in Chicago and that newspapers had been subsidized to advertise the machine created by Simmons and Evans.

Recent litigation between Simmons and Evans for control of the organization was collusively settled, the petition charged, after $90,000 in attorneys' fees had been paid.

It declared Evans' salary as Imperial Wizard was $15,000 a year, and that Evans used $2 of every $10 initiation fee to advance personal fortunes and maintain a system of espionage over all Klan officers and departments.

Judge John D. Humphries signed the restraining order. Hearing on the petition for a permanent injunction and receivership will be held June 9.

COL. CAMPBELL LEFT BUT HALF-MILLION

Santa Barbara, Cal., June 1.—Less than a half million dollars instead of many millions, as estimated is the value of the estate of the late Colonel Colin P. Campbell, former British army officer and relative of the Duke of Argyle, according to a petition for probate of his will just filed here.

With the exception of a small annuity to an aunt in England, Mrs. Campbell inherits the entire estate. She is rich in her own name, being an heir to the $60,000,000 estate of the late Levy Z. Leiter, partner of Marshall Field.

2 HURT BY TAXICAB; 1 DYING

William Nagland, "L" Watchman, Is Perhaps Fatally injured in Back Bay Mishap

William Nagland, sixty-one-year-old watchman for the Boston Elevated Railway Company, is dying at City Hospital from injuries received today when struck by a taxicab on Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay.

Jesse M. Hutchinson, thirty-five years, is under treatment at the hospital for body bruises from the same cause.

Nagland, who lives at No. 25 Aspinwall avenue, Brookline, and Hutchinson, whose home is at No. 115 Thurston street, Somerville, were talking in front of No. 331 Massachusetts avenue. This is on the south side of the avenue between Huntington avenue and St. Botolph street.

They were run down by a taxi of the Woodcock Taxi Company of Cherry street, South End, operated by William G. Bryson, of No. 102 Fellows street, Roxbury.

Bryson told the police that he did not see Nagland and Hutchinson until after the accident. He stopped his machine, took the injured men aboard and rushed to the hospital.

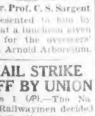
FIND BOOZE HID IN "MOURNING"

Moses Graff of No. 63 Allen street, West End, who has, according to the police, posed at various times as a rabbi, was fined $200 and sentenced to three months in the House of correction today by Judge Dowd in Municipal Court for keeping and exposing liquor for sale. He appealed.

On his last appearance in court Graff was fined $25 after signing an affidavit saying he intended to sail for Palestine and quit the liquor traffic.

Patrolman James Leonard of Joy street station raided Graff's home and, it is alleged, found two quarts of liquor wrapped up in black crepe.

MEYER MEDAL GIVEN PROF. SARGENT



Professor Charles S. Sargent of Harvard, director of the Arnold Arboretum, has been awarded the Frank N. Meyer Agricultural Medal by the American Genetic Association "for distinguished services in the field of foreign plant introduction."

The medal, which had been sent to Harvard to be bestowed upon Dr. Prof. C. S. Sargent, was presented to him by President Lowell at a luncheon given by Dr. Sargent for the overseers' committee on the Arnold Arboretum.

BELGIAN RAIL STRIKE CALLED OFF BY UNION

Brussels, June 1 (AP).—The National Union of Railwaymen decided to call off the strike that has paralyzed transportation the last few weeks so as to clear itself of charge that the strike was financed by German money. It was reported a check for 150,000 francs, drawn by the German Reichsbank in favor of the union, was presented at the branch of an American bank by a union official. Payment was refused because of a technicality.

DISCOVERS HARDSHIP ON ROAD TO FAME

Miss Elizabeth Chase.

HUB GIRL STRANDED IN N. Y.

Betty Chase, "Pride of Beacon Hill," Played the "Hurdy Gurdy" for Trip to Europe

The sacred name of Pastiglione doesn't mean a thing to New York pawnbrokers. It is doubtful if they ever heard, even, of Stradivarius. To them a violin is just a fiddle, and $10 is the best that they'll offer you for any sort of a fiddle when the wolf is growling at the studio door, according to Betty Chase of Boston. Betty tried to pawn her $500 Pastiglione when she and her chum, Muriel Hannah, who "does sketches," found their cupboard, like old Mother Hubbard's, bare.

Betty is the product of Boston's Beacon Hill Bohemia. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Chase of No. 2 Bellingham place. Her father is an artist and an expert in antiques. Mrs. Chase is a tutor in a Newton family. Betty, one whose musical education considerable money has been spent during her twenty years of life, was a well-known figure among the artists who frequent Beacon Hill tea rooms before she went to Greenwich Village. Betty has also been a favorite in the Summer artists' colonies at Provincetown and Gloucester.

SHARED "STUDIO."

A few months ago she went to New York and there met Muriel Hannah. They shared a studio—any old box stall in a Greenwich Village barn is a "studio" by courtesy—while trying to earn a living by the practice of their art. Art failing them they put on gypsy raiment and hired a hurdy-gurdy, with which they gave recitals. The hurdy-gurdy went big and they saved enough money to buy steerage tickets to Europe on the Red Star liner Lapland.

Before they got started, however, they met reverses, so Betty tried to pawn the Pastiglione, her $500 violin. The various lineal descendants of Shylock, who carry on the pawnbrokerage business in New York, offered her from $3 to $10 for it.

Betty refused to sell and the trip to Europe is in the limbo of things she is going to have "some day."

However, the studio rent is still going on. Twenty-year-old girls must have something to eat, even if it's only teaboxes chuck, and Betty and her chum Muriel are thinking of abandoning art for the hurdy gurdy. Meals were quite regular during the period when they ground out the overture to William Tell and the Wearing of the Green.

PRIDE OF BEACON HILL

On Beacon Hill today Miss Jane Poor, joint proprietor of the Bright Oven and heiress to the Poor fortunes made in mustard and allspice, declared that Betty was the pride of Beacon Hill in her girlhood, but that she has lately developed a wanderlust which has drawn her away from the sacred purlieus of the Gilded Dome.

TEN KILLED IN RELIGIOUS RIOT IN MEXICO

Mexico City, June 1 (AP).—Ten persons were killed and seventeen were wounded in a religious riot at Durango City when a mob attacked the Provincial Palace and disarmed the mounted police. The latter opened fire.

Federal troops are being concentrated in Durango for the purpose of preventing further disorders. All places of amusement have been closed and soldiers are patrolling the streets.

Military patrols were on duty in the State capital throughout the night, augmented in the later hours by troop detachments hastily summoned from nearby garrisons.

The trouble grew out of what was intended to be a demonstration and protest against a religious law. A committee of prominent Catholics, accompanied by a crowd of 3,000 persons, marched to the palace to ask the Governor and Legislature to rescind the measure. While its spokesmen were awaiting admission to the building, the assemblage listened to several fiery speeches and finally became so excited that it began to bombard the palace with stones.

WANAMAKER IS ILL; POLICE GUARD HOUSE

New York, June 1.—Five police officers have been placed around the Washington square home of Deputy Police Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker to preserve quiet, his secretary, Thomas A. Hayes, today denied that Wanamaker is seriously ill and said that he was merely recuperating from exhaustion, caused by the heat and fatigue which he underwent during the city's jubilee parade last Saturday. Mr. Wanamaker was unable to make an address for which he was scheduled on Saturday and was reported ill Monday night. According to his secretary he expects to return to business next Monday.

LEG INJURY STOPS MARATHON GOLFER

San Antonio, Tex., June 1.—"As soon as the old leg gets well I'll come out and smash the record," Clarence Mangham, golf professional, declared today as he contemplated the distance he still had to go when he was forced to drop out of the Marathon golf contest because of a bad knee. Mangham finished 97 holes with an average of 79½ strokes for each round.

FIRE ENGINE IS WRECKED IN COLLISION

Two firemen and a truck driver narrowly escaped injury when fire engine No. 26, answering a two-alarm fire in the South End, crashed into a truck of the Christian Science Monitor Publishing Company at Sumart and Tremont streets.

On the fire engine were John Hoar, driver, No. 76 Gleason street, and Captain Mahon of the New Bedford Fire Department, who had been in Boston the past week observing Boston methods of fire fighting. The newspaper truck was driven by Ralph Quarnstrom, No. 16 Adams street, Arlington. None of the three men was injured.

VANDERBILT AND FIANCEE AT FIRE

Newport, R. I., June 1.—William H. Vanderbilt and a party of guests, all in evening clothes, raced from Oakland Farms to Valley Inn, Middleton, in a new truck bought recently by Mr. Vanderbilt, to help put out a fire which started in the rear of the inn.

The Vanderbilt party was just about to sit down to dine when the Middleton siren was heard sounding an alarm. In spite of the fact he was giving a dinner party in honor of his fiance, Miss Emily Davies, Vanderbilt hurried out his truck and with some of his guests drove to the scene.

By the time the Vanderbilt party arrived volunteers had formed a bucket brigade and had the blaze virtually out.

TRIAL BOARD CONVICTS 4 PATROLMEN

Four patrolmen were convicted of charges brought against them and the resignation of another accepted, as the initial step in Police Commissioner Wilson's campaign to increase the efficiency of the police department. Three other patrolmen were acquitted of charges by trial boards. One voluntarily resigned to enter business.

Commr. Wilson

Commissioner Wilson stated in general orders that a trial board, after investigating the complaints of neglect of duty against Patrolmen Edward J. MacDonald, Horace G. Jeffries and John J. Carey, all of the Roxbury Crossing station, found them guilty. They were ordered reprimanded in general orders.

Patrolman Martin A. Keeley, of the Dudley street station, was found guilty of absence without leave and ordered to put in 120 hours' punishment duty.

Harry G. Sturgill, of the Charlestown Station, resigned under pressure of drunkenness charg.s pending. Williard R. Cook, of the traffic squad resigned to enter business.

Patrolmen Harry J. Silva and James E. Taylor, both of Roxbury Crossing Station, were found not guilty of charges preferred.

Patrolman Earle W. Haley, of the Hanover Street Station was found not guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer.

ADMIRAL KNAPP'S ASHES SCATTERED

New York, June 1.—The ashes of Vice-Admiral Harry S. Knapp, retired, who died in Hartford, Ct., April 6, were scattered to the winds of the Atlantic today from the deck of the battleship Arkansas. The urn containing the remains of the naval officer arrived in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and was received by a naval guard of honor.

The Arkansas left Annapolis and the ceremony of commitment to the deep took place as soon as the open sea was reached.

DIVER DIES WHILE UNDERNEATH WATER

East Haddam, Ct., June 1.—Arnold R. Doe, forty-three years old, of East Haddam, superintendent of bridges under direction of the State highway department, died here while submerged in a diving suit in the Connecticut river.

After Doe had been in the water about twenty minutes and the man on the barge received no signal from him, they brought him up and taking off the diving suit found him dead.

Hints at 'Pen' Plot

MME. EVA GAUTHIER.

Concert singer who defends George Maxwell, accused as "poison pen" writer. She believes he is the victim of a Camorra-like clique and will prove his innocence.

ACCUSERS SEEK MAXWELL'S JOB, SINGER SAYS

New York, June 1.—Did a Camorra-like clique write the "poison pen" letters for which George Maxwell, music publisher, is blamed?

This was the startling theory advanced today by Mme. Eva Gauthier, concert singer, niece of the late Sir Wilfred Laurier, premier of Canada, and one of those named in the series of "poison pen" letters ascribed to Maxwell.

"It is my firm belief," said the singer, "that Maxwell is the victim of a clique that has adopted the tactics of the Camorra to oust him from his position as American representative of the Italian music publishing house of Ricordi & Co."

There is a great deal of such intrigue going on in this country, Mme. Gauthier maintained, aimed against Americans, Canadians and British.

WRECK SHED TO SAVE HORSE FROM FIRE

Milford, June 1.—Sparks from a bonfire ignited the roof of the former Marshall garage, now owned by Antonio Dellasquale, and before extinguished, the fire did much damage. Sparks also jumped to three buildings in the rear, including the Alhambra Rubber factory, and a horse shed. A horse was rescued only by tearing half the building away. The damage was $2000.

POSSE TRAILING SLAYER OF WIFE, 19

Easton, Ct., June 1 (I. N. S.)—State police, aided by posses of citizens are beating the wild country west ward to the New York State line in search of Robert Edwards, thirty-eight-year-old farmer, who slew his nineteen-year-old wife, Ruby, in the presence of her friends Wednesday night and fled into the woods.

While five shots heard later were believed to have been Edwards's effort to end his life, no trace of the man or his body have been found, though the district has been searched.

An autopsy disclosed that the fired a second charge of buckshot into her body as she lay huddled on the grounds, felled by a first charge which tore her from the arms of Mrs. Adolph Svenson, who tried to protect her. Stunned by the suddenness of the attack, three men accompanying the two women permitted Edwards to flee into a thicket.

MRS. CROKER, TESTIFYING IN WILL FIGHT, BARES HER ANCESTRY

INDIAN ON MOTHER'S SIDE

Widow of Tammany Leader Denies Having Lived With Marone in Northampton

By DANIEL O'CONNELL

Dublin, June 1 (I. N. S.).—Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany in New York, testified today in the will contest action brought by her husband's children by a former marriage.

Dressed in black with a heavy veil covering the upper part of her face, Mrs. Croker spoke in a low voice. She said her people were Oklahoma farmers. She inherited her Indian blood through her mother.

Mrs. Croker enumerated prominent New Yorkers whom she included among her friends. She named former Congressman Martin Littleton. She said she first met Croker at the Studio Club in New York City in 1914, in company of Andrew Freeman.

The witness detailed her movements in an attempt to show that she never lived at the places where the opposite side claimed she had resided as the apparent wife of Guy R. Marone.

Mrs. Croker denied she ever visited Northampton, Mass., where Mrs. Ethel Croker White, the intervenent, alleged Mrs. Croker had married Marone.

HOW CROKER MADE IT.

Mrs. Croker recalled litigation at Palm Beach, Fla., after she had married the former Tammany chief. She said the name of Marone was never brought up during the proceedings, although names of her relatives and friends in high places were constantly mentioned, including that of Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

Other witnesses were racecourse acquaintances of the testator. They told of Croker's mental condition, which they declared seemed normal. A priest, cousin of Croker's first wife, testified in favor of Mrs. Bula Croker.

"Where did Croker get it?"—the question made famous at the Lexow investigation, was answered by Henry Hanna, counsel for Mrs. Croker.

The lawyer declared that "Boss" Croker made most of his money in real estate investments and speculation.

Mrs. Croker

A crowded court listened breathlessly while Hanna told the story of Croker's remarkable rise from the time when, as a boy of eight, the family was compelled to leave the shores of Erin in the dark days of 1847.

GENTRY OF CORK.

Hanna, in a speech which occupied two hours, said that the Croker family, since their rise to fame, despised the "Boss" because of his humble origin. Though his ancestors were really of the gentry of Cork, he could not take a place in New York society. The family, in his presence, according to Hanna, made scathing remarks about his lack of culture, and this led to acute friction eventually culminating in 1897 in a separation between the "Boss" and his family. In spite of the separation Croker adequately provided for his wife, giving her $100,000 and besides allowed her $20,000 annually.

The boss said Hanna, although a great figure as a result of Van Wyck's election as Mayor of New York, after that led a lonely life, his children only seeing him when they wanted money.

New York—A Board of Inquiry at Ellis Island decided today that seven British subjects, just arrived, must be excluded as the British immigration quota is exhausted. The list includes Mrs. Elsie Demitron, British bride of an American citizen.

Pair Who Vanished

MRS. ANNIE ICETON AND THOMAS BARRIE

Shortly after Mrs. Annie Iceton, twenty-four years old, a boarder at the home of Mrs. James Barrie, of No. 192 Thornton street, Roxbury, mysteriously left home, Thomas Barrie, eighteen-year-old son of Mrs. Barrie also disappeared. Mrs. Barrie has asked the police to assist her in locating her boy.

Mrs. Iceton helped Thomas prepare the new home for the Barries, and it is said they became infatuated.

CURLEY PLANS BIG MATERNITY HOSPITAL

Boston will have a municipal maternity hospital, located upon the grounds of the City Hospital, second to none in the United States, if the plans of Mayor Curley and the trustees of the institution meet with no obstacles.

The present maternity ward at the City Hospital has but twenty-two beds, an increase of four since 1914. Last year alone some 652 babies were born there.

In 1920 there were 403 babies born in the hospital; in 1921 there were 565 born and the 1922 figures given above shows an increase of about 62 per cent. in three years.

On Monday next, Mayor Curley and the trustees of the hospital will hold a conference over the new building program that the hospital officials expect to carry out over a period of twenty-five years.

The mayor has in mind for immediate action, the maternity building and a home for nurses, orderlies and interns. The buildings will cost $1,000,000 when completed.

A loan order to the council on Monday, authorizing the borrowing of $50,000, will start architects at work on the plans, which will take at least six months to complete.

1,400 IN BROOKLINE HIGH CLASS DAY

The Class Day exercises of the Brookline High School were held today at the high school on Tappan street. Fourteen hundred pupils participated under the direction of Dr. Arthur W. Roberts, of the school faculty. Following a concert by the school band, under the guidance of Professor Samuel W. Cole, the ivy was planted by John McCalfe. President Roger Shrugg, of the graduating class, delivered the address of welcome, and Herbert Braggiotti the class oration. Marshall Schucht read the class poem and Roger Hardy the class history. The class song was composed by Robert Smith and Hilda Wocken.

FOUR LYNN MEN HELD FOR HUB TIRE THEFTS

Four men were arrested in Lynn today for the Boston police who accuse them of larceny of $1,000 worth of auto tires in two Back Bay shop breaks.

The prisoners, Charles R. and William E. Jones, Francis W. DeGrasse and Alfred K. Greenleaf, all of Lynn, admitted the breaks after an hour's questioning at Lynn police headquarters, according to the officers.

The thefts were from the Ajax Tire Company, Commonwealth avenue and the Dunlop Company on Dalton street.

VICTORY FOR BALDWIN AS IRISH BILL PASSES

London, June 1. (I. N. S.)—The Irish Deportation Indemnity Bill was passed by the House of Commons today without a roll call. A victory for the new Baldwin Government. This bill was designed to protect the home secretary and his government colleagues from financial damages for illegal deportations of Irish Republican sympathizers from England to Ireland.

EXPECT BERLIN TO OFFER NEAR 12 BILLIONS

Rome, June 1 (I. N. S.)—Hugo Stinnes, German industrial magnate, arrived secretly at Milan and conferred with Italian financiers and industrialists, according to the newspaper Messaggero.

London, June 1 (I. N. S.)—Chancellor Cuno of Germany, according to Berlin advices, is receiving reports from industrial emissaries of allied countries preparatory to a new reparations offer which is expected to be made next week. This offer is said to meet the views of the British and Italians.

According to the Daily News, German bankers are in London conferring with British capitalists and German industrialists are in Paris consulting French financiers.

The general impression is that, if Germany offers 50,000,000,000 gold marks ($11,900,000,000) France will consider it, although there is little hope that French troops will be withdrawn from the Ruhr until German pays.

"The terms may be considerably changed," said the News editorially, "yet there is one point upon which the British should take a decisive stand:

"That is, France should not be given power to veto any decision reached by an impartial committee of economic experts."

It is understood Germany will propose the Inter-allied reparations commission appoint international experts to determine how much Germany can pay, the manner of payment and guarantees. The United States and Germany would both be represented. It is similar to the proposal made by Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes.

German Potash Record Yields Huge Dividends

Berlin, June 1.—All records for production of German potash were broken in 1922, it was revealed today in annual reports of the three producing concerns.

The total marketed was 12,955,433 double centners as compared with 11,105,694 in 1913, the previous record year, and with 9,211,814 in 1921. A centner is slightly more than 110 pounds.

Foreign buyers took 25.6 per cent. of last year's production as against 16.5 per cent. in 1921 and 54.6 in 1913. The American market is reported as particularly favorable. Prices at the end of December were 800 times those obtained before the war.

The dividends declared by the three concerns were as follows: Salzdetfurth, 250 per cent. as compared with 24 per cent. in 1921; Westeregeln, 200 per cent. as compared with 20 per cent. in 1921; Ascherslehen, 150 per cent. as compared with 18. The net profits were respectively; 253,000,000 marks, 216.8 million marks and 52.7 million, as compared with 12.53 million, 8.28 million and 9.08 million in the previous year.

The Baden Aniline and Soda Works, the great chemical plant here, declared a dividend of 300 per cent. for 1922, as against 30 per cent. in 1921. The net profits last year were 3,976,440,000 marks, as compared with 168,750,000 marks the year previous.

Prussians Float Two Loans on Commodities

Berlin, June 1.—The Prussian government closed subscription lists today on two five per cent. State loans in real values, after both issues had been several times oversubscribed. One of the loans amounted to 100,000,000 kilograms of potash, and the other to 400,000 centners of rye. The subscriptions to the former totalled 400,240,700

CORPS OF DETECTIVES GUARD JEWELS OF WEALTHY N. Y. GIRLS

PROTECTED AGAINST THIEVES

Long Series of Robberies Forces Daughters of Rich to Take Extra Precautions

New York, June 1.—Many highly paid detectives are guarding the jewels belonging to the young women of the city's millionaire families.

There is an element in the brilliant background of wealthy men and women that is seldom recognized by the average public. This is the element of protection.

The J. Pierpont Morgans learned a terrific lesson in the Wall street explosion of September, 1920, in which thirty-nine persons lost their lives and three times that number suffered injury. The bomb exploded in Wall street, almost directly in front of the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. The property loss ran into millions.

MORGANS CAREFUL.

In the investigation which followed it was declared the bomb horror might have been averted had the Morgan bank been amply protected by guards.

The Morgans are exceedingly careful now. Whenever they attend a semi-public occasion, Morgan detectives are on the job. The average person does not recognize them, for their badges are concealed under civilian clothes.

Four or five plainclothes men are on constant guard near the Morgan house at No. 231 Madison avenue.

DANGER OF JEWELRY

This has come about partly through a general sartorial trend in the direction of simplicity, and partly because wealthy women have been advised of the danger of exhibiting a fortune in gems on throat, hair and hands.

Despite this retrenchment, the diamond horseshoe on gala nights at the Metropolitan still scintillates sufficiently to dazzle the moral vision of many persons. For this reason a full force of detectives is always on hand.

There was a time when society leaders, alarmed by frequent robberies, kept two set of jewels, one genuine, the other paste. The genuine ornaments were kept in the family bank vaults, while the imitations were worn fearlessly.

The uniformed footmen one sees in luxurious limousines often are not footmen at all. Frequently they are detectives in disguise.

Canton, June 1 (AP).—Sun Yat Sen's army has captured Waichow, about fifty miles east of Canton. The enemy is retreating in disorder with the Canton Constitutionalists in pursuit.

WIFE OF 'MEANEST MAN' 'IS HAPPIEST OF WOMEN'

Mrs. Harry Gefen of No. 3 Akron street, Roxbury, wife of the meanest man in the world, has declared herself "the happiest woman in the world," following her reconciliation with her husband. Gefen won the title of "meanest man" some time ago while he was on trial for non-support. The term was applied to him by Attorney John F. McDonald, counsel for Mrs. Gefen. "I am the happiest woman in the world now that I have returned to my husband. I have become convinced that he did not merit the title "meanest man" which was applied to him by my counsel, but has always done his best to provide for me and my children," Mrs. Gefen said.

'FOUR HORSEMEN' WINS IN PUPILS' FILM CANVASS

New York, June 1.—The Russell Sage Foundation has just completed a unique and far-reaching movie canvas among the high school pupils of the United States. Thirty-seven thousand five hundred and five pupils, 17,310 boys and 20,195 girls, answered the questionnaire. As to the question of which movie film they liked the best, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" won, with "Way Down East" second, "The Sheik" third, then, in order, "Over the Hill," "Birth of a Nation" and the "Three Musketeers." In the boys' list for choice of favorite movie actor, Douglas Fairbanks won, with Wallace Reid second and Tom Mix third. The girls picked Rudolph Valentino, Wallace Reid and Richard Barthelmess.

SUSPECT SUICIDE NOTE WAS HOAX

The Somerville police are convinced that the note hinting suicide and the necklace found near the Tufts College reservoir were planted by boys as a hoax and were not left by a woman about to jump into the water. The note was signed "Margie," and the police have been unable to find that anyone of that name is missing in the vicinity of Somerville.

ONE BABY DIED IN MISS MacCAULEY'S PLOT AGAINST BILL HART

CHILD'S MOTHER WAS SHOP GIRL IN CAMBRIDGE

Death foiled the plans of Elizabeth MacCaulley, the Boston teacher and Wellesley graduate, when first she set out to achieve her aim of wish fulfillment—the ensnaring of the heart of William S. Hart, movie hero.

Conceiving the idea of adopting an infant she could exhibit to the world as Bill Hart's "love child," she made a lengthy canvas and eventually located a Cambridge mother, a shop girl, who was compelled to give up her youngster.

In the meantime details for the confronting of Hart with the child and later the taking of the baby to District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles were worked out, but just before execution the baby died. It was then the hunt started that led to the finding of Robert John Webb, who was held up to the world as Bill Hart's son.

Dined With Belle

Miss MacCauley, who has confessed to this most amazing plot to clear the stigma her denunciation brought on the head of the man she loved, tells today how she had dined with Hart and his sister in California in January, 1916, how she dreamed of him and of her mental suffering. Her story:

"I met my mother in Chicago. I wanted to tell her my secret. I had succeeded in making myself believe that I was going to be the mother of a child. My mind is very strong and can control my body. It was not so easy with Hart. He paid no attention to my letters, though to me as I read them again now, they seem to be proof that I was about to become a mother. Hart never answered my letters. I don't know whether he got them or not.

"I wrote letters that I thought would make him love me. I wrote him letters that would make him wish he were the father of a child whether he believed it or not. I did everything in my power to make Hart believe he was going to be a father. I knew it would be hard but I kept the firm belief that if I had enough faith in my enterprise, I would succeed with him, and would finally make him love me.

"It seems to me that any man would love a woman who would go to the extent to make him love as that I did.

He Never Loved Her

"I felt it was for Hart's own good to love me. I felt he would be a greater man with me than without me. I thought I could help him, andeven now I know I could. I know he never loved me. But I know that no one has ever loved him as I do. I loved him for a year before I ever saw him and after I saw him. I knew I could never love anyone else. I was obsessed with the idea of gaining his love.

"I fully expected Hart would see me after I wrote him about the baby. I thought he would have to.

"To my surprise, he would not see me, or else he never received the letters. It seems to me he must have got them.

"Then came the time that my mental child should be born. I had him born September 3, 1917. I lived through it all as if it were real. I was in Brookline, No. 9 Wellman street, at the time. My sister Martha, dean of a Western university, was visiting my mother and me.

Thought She Would Die

"If they could have only known what was going on in my mind! I actually suffered. Truly, there were many days when I thought I would die. My mental state was beginning to weigh on me dreadfully. But I kept up my belief in the power of the mind.

Six months passed. I was wondering what I would have to do next if I were to succeed in attracting Hart's attention and to make him see him see me. I felt as if he had misunderstood, anad that if I could ever make him see me, by fair or foul means, I could explain. I thought someone had talked about me to him and made him despise me.

First Baby Died

"Then the thought came—If I could get a real child and take it to Los Angeles. I would be able to force Hart to see me. I decided to adopt a child and to elieve that it was my child by Hart.

"The first baby I tried to get died. That was in March. I met a woman on a subway one day going to Cambridge. We started talking. She told me that a girl had a baby a few months' old in her house, and that the girl could not afford to keep it. I told her this was a strange coincidence, since I was looking for a baby to adopt.

"We exchanged addresses and telephone numbers and I told her I would come and see the baby. I did. I was going to adopt it when the poor thing died. The little mother came to see me after its death to thank me for what I was going to do for the baby.

"Finally I put an ad in the paper. Lucy Webb answered it. I began adoption proceedings. I went about it as carefully as I could to keep anybody from knowing about it.

HAD TO TELL FRIENDS

"I tried to sign my name as few times as possible. It finally got to the point that I had to confide in a few friends. I told them that I wanted to bring it to the house to live with me but that I couldn't tell my mother. I told them I was adopting the other baby to get a series of letters from his mother to show to my mother, and thus explain my interest in a child.

"At the last minute, I told my confidans. I was going to slip my own child into the house and not take the other woman's baby. I told them the reason I never had let any person see him was that I was afraid that Hart might kidnap him. They seemed thoroughly satisfied with this story.

"When I got the Webb baby in November, 1918, I was elated. I had to go stealthily to the place I was boarding him, just before I went to the train. I was almost petrified with fear that I should see someone I knew."

REVEAL WEDDING AFTER TWO YEARS

Saugus, June 1.—After he had officiated as best man at the wedding of his brother, Clifford A. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Nelson of No. 163 Essex street, Cliftondale announced to his family and friends that he had been married for two years, and introduced his wife, who was Blanche E. Mayo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Mayo of No. 4 Packard avenue, Saugus.

The young coupe were married in Saugus and kept the news of the ceremony a secret because of the ill health of the bridegroom's mother.

$3,000,000 IS LEFT BY WOMAN IN VERMONT

Montpelier, Vt., June 1.—Miss Lizzie W. Langdon, only surviving daughter of James R. Langdon, former president of the Central Vermont Railroad, and who, at the time of his death was the only millionaire in this city, is dead at her home here.

Miss Langdon has been an invalid since her childhood. She leaves two nephews, J. Langdon Schroeder and Henry Schroeder of New York city, and two nieces, Mrs. Leonard Swinnerton Dyer of Shropshire, England, and Mrs. Charles H. Stout of Short Hills, N. J.

Miss Langdon leaves an estate in this city valued at more than $3,000,000. It is thought that the settling of this estate will cause considerable difficulty, because of the large amount of real estate that she owned.

$10,000,000 Jump in Trust Company Savings Deposits

The people of the State deposited $10,000,000 more in the savings departments of trust companies during the first three months of this year than they did during the same period in 1922.

This was revealed in the report of Roy A. Hovey, chief of division of trust companies in the department of banking and insurance. Substantial increases in loans made by savings departments on real estate in deposits in commercial departments, and in trust divisions were also reported.

Washington. — Complaints were issued by the Federal Trade Commission charging the American Tobacco Company, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and P. Lorillard Company with "co-operatively fixing standard prices at which certain tobacco products shall be resold."

DELAY ACTION ON ACCUSED CITY OFFICIAL

Newburyport, June 1.—The City Council will take no action on the charges against Councillor Matthew A. Twomey, who, with Raymond Haich, is accused of an attack on Mrs. Anne F. Donahue until the court has acted in the matter, according to Mayor J. R. Cashman.

Anne F. Donahue

The case is scheduled to come up for a hearing in the District Court Tuesday. The rumors that Mrs. Donahue was about to drop prosecution were denied by Representative Timothy S. Herlihy, counsel for the accused men. The attorney pointed out that she could not refuse to prosecute the charges if she desired to do so, because the alleged attack is a felony.

FEAR MUSICIAN WILL DROWN SELF IN POND

Fearing that Carl W. Dodge, missing musician of the Metropolitan Opera Company orchestra, will attempt suicide in a pond near Boston in the vicinity of where he once lived, patrols have been placed at all ponds nearby today. Dodge, the son of W. G. Dodge of Brookline, disappeared Wednesday from a Brattleboro (Vt.) retreat. He left a note to his wife, saying he was "going to end it all."

How You May Change Your Face Completely

Use Ordinary Mercolized Wax

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can easily remove it and have a new one. The thin veil of stifling, lifeless skin, with all its sallowness and blotches removed, reveals a fresh, young, vigorous skin underneath, a chance to show itself and to breathe. There's a simple old-fashioned remedy which will always do the work. Get an ounce of pure Mercolized Wax from your druggist and apply at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The wax gently absorbs all the lifeless skin, leaving a healthy, beautiful complexion, fresh as a child's. Naturally it takes with it all such blemishes as freckles, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples. It is pleasant to use, and economical. The face so treated soon looks years younger.

TIGER WOMAN'S STORY REVEALS YEARS OF SUFFERING

CLARA PHILLIPS BARES TORTURE OF 'LONG LIFE'

The first instalment of the thrilling life story of Clara Phillips, Los Angeles "hammer murderess," written and signed by herself and obtained through the efforts of the Los Angeles Examiner, is herewith presented. It gives in detail this remarkable woman's amazing career, her version of the murder of Alberta Meadows and of her conviction; tells of her astonishing escape and her wanderings until she was captured in Honduras, and of her return to the United States to pay the penalty of her crime.

By CLARA PHILLIPS.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Los Angeles Examiner and International Service. All rights reserved. Production in whole or part prohibited.)

Los Angeles, May 31.—I am a very much misunderstood person. By following the advice of different attorneys I have remained silent too long and vivid imaginations have been at work to replace the true facts. I am going to talk now—to clear the fogged atmosphere and to give people a peek at me as I believe I really am and not as horrible as people have pictured me.

During my twenty-four years of life I have lived at least half a century. I have experienced ordeals so trying as to rip the very soul within me. I have passed through hell's tortures often on this earth, for each time it seemed the work of fate, the result of misfortune, the turn of bad advice and now to be pictured as the hammer murderess when I never used a hammer or struck a blow that resulted in the pitiful death of Alberta Meadows and to know that the woman who really struck the blows with that hammer has gone scot free, has made me more determined than ever to talk to the world and to return to Los Angeles to struggle for the clearance of my good name and the justice that I believe due me.

COULD HAVE BEEN FREE.

I could have been free in Honduras. I waived extradition to fight the charge.

In this article I am going to describe my early life, my unusual experiences of youth, my romance with my husband, Armour Phillips, whose love meant the whole world to me, the theft of that love by Alberta Meadows, the way another won it and used the hammer that ended this girl's life, my misfortunes leading up to the trial, the trial itself and my unjust conviction.

How I was kidnaped out of the county jail by Jesse Carson and my strange and unusual experiences that finally brought me to Honduras where I was arrested, will be told. Then I shall tell of my experiences and offers of freedom to me in exchange for my honor and last why I chose to return to California to fight the unjust charge and face all issues squarely rather than live the life of a fugitive in silence in the Central American countries.

KIDNAPED AT 8.

I was born in the little town of Waco, Texas, on June 23, 1898. We moved to Ft. Worth, Texas, when I was four years of age. When I was eight years of age a Mrs. Thompson took a fancy to me and kidnaped me. She was a fortune teller. I used to pass her place every day on my way to school. She took a liking to me and engaged me in conversation very frequently.

One day she told me that if I passed by her place the next day and did not see her to be sure to drop in. I did so. She had a bag all packed up and said I was going somewhere with her. I objected and cried when we got to a railroad station but she put me on a train with a ticket and a letter and told me she would see me in two weeks. She instructed the conductor to let me off at Wichita, Kansas.

WARNED TO SILENCE.

I cried all the way and knew mamma would be terribly worried but did not say anything to the conductor or anyone, as the woman had told me I must not under any circumstances, and I was afraid.

When we got to Wichita a man with a long beard met me at the train and took me to a hotel, where I was left alone. I was afarid to go to bed. Kept my clothes on all night and cried.

The next day I was taken out of the hotel and sent to the house of a family, where I was to wait the arrival of Mrs. Thompson. In two weeks she came. She moved her fortune-telling business to Wichita. She acted towards me as though I was her own daughter. She warned me not to let anyone know whom I was and enclosed a newspaper clipping to this family which described how Clara Weaver had been kidnaped.

FRIEND INTERVENES.

Some days later I was given permission to walk on the streets. As I was passing another place I met another family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gatley, who had a boy of eleven. As kids we used to play together. After some time I asked permission from Mrs. Thompson to stay for a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gatley.

I got this permission and remained for four days. Then Mrs. Thompson got worried and wanted me to come back. Because she used to steal I decided I did not want to go back and so I told Mrs. Gatley the whole story. Mrs. Gatley decided to notify the authorities but said she would see Mrs. Thompson first. When she went to the house of Mrs. Thompson and said she would tell the authorities a terrible fight occurred.

SENT BACK HOME.

Mrs. Thompson struck her on the head with a billy and her hair was torn and she was finally carried out by Mrs. Thompson and placed in a piano box in the yard. That night the police came. Mrs. Thompson and her husband were arrested and I was sent home on a train. Later Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were charged with a crime and tried. I was called as a witness against them. Thompson was kept in jail for a long time and Mrs. Thompson was finally released.

I stayed at Fort Worth and was placed in a convent for three years. I had an uncle living in Miles, Texas. I went out to visit him. There I went to school and studied music. My older sister, Ola Weaver, was living in Galveston at that time. I went to Galveston and went to school there. From there I went to Houston.

MEETS PHILLIPS.

At Houston, Armour L. Phillips through a girl friend of mine at a party. I saw Armour quite frequently after that. We went to moving shows and parties. A great and wonderful love had come into my life. We went together for three years. One evening he proposed to me. It was the happiest moment of my life. We decided to elope. I was just sixteen.

That love meant everything to me. He was the one man that filled my heart and mind. I was extremely happy. Because of my fondness for music and dancing I went on the stage for a short time. Some friends of mine gave me an opportunity to go into vaudeville. Later, during the war, when Armour was in the service I again returned to the stage and left on his return home. My stage career included the Follies of New York and other theatres of the country.

HIS LOVE COOLS.

Three years ago Armour and I came to Los Angeles. We were very happy and he was getting along very well as a salesman. One day Armour met Alberta Meadows at the home of Mrs. Julia McElroy. Later I met her there at a party. We were all very friendly. One day when I was visiting Mrs. McElroy I told her how cold and distant Armour had been to me of late; about the way he was staying away at nights and how blue and terrible I felt. Only folks who have gone through it can understand. Then she told me about Alberta Meadows and Armour. I felt heartsick. Words can't describe it. I went home and told mother and Ola, my sister, about it. Then Armour came home after seeing Alberta and made an accusation against me, which I learned later Alberta had told him merely to strengthen her position with him and weaken mine.

ELOPEMENT PLANNED.

Armour and I went over to Mrs. McElroy's where we discussed the whole matter and Armour, learning that I had been informed of his misdeeds became very angry and left.

It was then I learned that Alberta and Armour were planning to go away together around the world and had bought a new trunk for that purpose. I was just sick all over. I trembled. I cried. I did not know what to do. I decided I would have a talk with Alberta Meadows. I saw my folks first. They advised me to have a talk with Armour. Armour would not talk. He was just glum. When I tried to put my arms around him he would say:

"Don't touch me; don't touch me; keep away from me."

Ice in Maine Brooks As Crops Freeze in Heavy Frost

Augusta, Me., June 1.—Strawberry beds and orchards in Augusta suffered considerably from frost which struck the lowlands. Other crops escaped injury, as only early peas were out of the ground.

Frost struck through the Monmouth section heavily and ice formed in several of the brooks.

R. I. MAN LEAVES ESTATE TO BROWN

Providence, June 1.—Brown University is the principal legatee under the will of Walter Hammond Kimball, receiving the residuary estate after the establishment of several trust funds and bequests. Kimball's unusually large library, containing many fine first editions, also goes to the university. The estate is estimated at $300,000.

N. Y. GIRL TO FLY FROM FRANCE TO TURKEY

New York, June 1.—Miss Yvonne Mollat, nineteen-year-old aviatrix, sailed on the Rochambeau to attempt a non-stop flight next August from Paris to Constantinople. Miss Mollat, daughter of a New York restaurateur, has been studying flying for two years at Mineola, L. I.

SAVE GIRL FROM DEPORTATION TO ITALY

New York, June 1.—Ten-year-old Concetta Dellaciopa was released on the virtual eve of deportation today and is on her way to join her family in Natick, R. I.

Fall River friends of her father came to her rescue when he was unable to pay in full the bill for two years' medical treatment presented by that stern creditor, Uncle Sam. During all that time she has been held literally a prisoner at Ellis Island.

Concetta arrived here in 1921 with four brothers and sisters but was detained to undergo treatment for trachoma. She was pronounced cured a few weeks ago, but the Department of Labor refused to allow her formal entry into the country until her father paid $822 for medical expenses.

Dellaciopra, a widower on a small salary, was unable to pay in full. He sought bondsmen with an offer of payments by installments in vain. Warning that the girl would be deported attracted wide attention to the case and the Fall River friends began negotiations for her release. It was finally arranged that Dellaciopa pay $650 and his friends put up bond for the remainder.

Special permission from the Secretary of Labor was then obtained

PROBE 2 FIRES OF MYSTERY IN SOUTH BOSTON

Authorities are investigating the cause of two mysterious fires in the M. A. King Paper Company building, No. 1232 Dorchester avenue, South Boston, occurring within an hour, the second of which almost destroyed the building and caused $5,000 damage.

Answering the first alarm, firemen found a $10 blaze on an outside stairway at the rear of the two-story frame structure. An hour later, answering an alarm sounded from the same signal box, they found fire in the interior burning up through to the second floor.

Dense clouds of smoke from burning paper complicated the work of the firemen in combating the flames and slowed up their work slightly.

The building is said to be owned by Nathan W. Robinson, No. 242 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester.

3 VANISH AFTER SUDDEN DEATH OF HUB MAN

Police are investigating the sudden death of Cornelius Conners, fifty years old, South End, after eating supper with three men in the apartment of George Brodus, No. 16 Florence street, South End.

Brodus and his two companions disappeared from their apartment soon afterward.

When efforts to arouse him failed, Brodus notified the police, who took he was pronounced dead. Conners has a brother, John Connors, living at No. 52 Village street, South End.

Medical Examiner Leary will perform an autopsy today.

JOHNSON BACK IN CHICAGO TO MANAGE OPERA

Chicago June 1.—Herbert M. Johnson, business manager of the Chicago Opera Company under the McCormick directorate, who resigned during the 1920-21 season when Mary Garden became director-general, is to return to the "front office" of the opera, now the Chicago Civic Opera Association, under the presidency of Samuel Insull. Mr. Johnson will be "assistant to the president."

The announcement of Mr. Johnson's return to the company was contained in a statement.

SHAW TO REMAIN.

Clark A. Shaw, who now has the title as business manager, will retain that position, but will devote most of his energies to arranging the extensive road trips taken each year by the opera company.

This work has been done with great success under Mr. Shaw's direction for several years.

EXECUTIVE POST.

As assistant to the president, it will be Mr. Johnson's duty to take over a large part of the important executive work of the company. Eight years ago Mr. Johnson came to the opera as an expert accountant, called to get a little greater value for the money invested in the company.

After the death of Cleofonte Campanin, Mr. Johnson was appointed business manager for the company, and a musical conductor was made artistic director.

This divided authority, however, did not prove successful, and after the Mary Garden regime began, Mr. Johnson left the opera company.

Former Boston Girl Attendant at Big Wedding, Says Betty Alden

(Photo Copyright by Bachrach)

Mrs. Amory S. Carhart (Isadora Bliss), formerly of Boston, will be one of the attendants at the Wells-Bennett nuptials tomorrow. The Carharts are leaders among the younger married set in Tuxedo Park.

THE one-time Isadora Bliss, of Boston, now Mrs. Amory Carhart of New York, will be one of the attendants at the wedding of Miss Helen Bennett and Bulkley L. Wells which takes place tomorrow at Green Spring Valley, just outside of Baltimore.

Tonight Mrs. Tom Cottman (Margaret Bennett), who will attend her sister as matron of honor, is giving a dance for members of the bridal party and some additional guests at "Westburn," the Cottmans' country place near Garrison Forest, where a large reception will be held following the wedding. The bride-to-be is the youngest daughter of Stephen Howe Bennett of Commonwealth avenue. The groom, a Harvard '19 man, and also formerly of Boston, will have his brother, Thomas Wells, as best man. His sister, Mrs. Lothrop M. Weld (Dorothy Wells), will be of the bridesmaids' group.

ters, Rosamond and Adrea Adie, trotted from the ring with their quota of blue ribbons. "Ros" Adie was the more active of the two on Wednesday, Adrea taking part only in the class of teams for three hunters. Later on Rosamond Adie rode Melody and Sandy.

QUEEN MARY IS ATTENTIVE TO AMERICANS

By LADY DECIES.
Universal Service Cable.

London, June 1.—A second brilliant court, unsurpassed since the war, was held at Buckingham Palace. Queen Mary, in a wonderful dress of silver and gold, was particularly attentive to the American women who were presented.

Among these were Mrs. Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia; Sylvia Lathrop, formerly of San Francisco; Mrs. Harry Normant, of Washington, who carried a four-foot fan consisting of eight ostrich plumes pressed one over the other and mounted on a slender stick with a beautiful enamelled handle; Catherine Lenihan, of Boston; Mrs. William Lowe Rice and daughter, Helen, of New York; Mrs. E. T. Sweeney and daughter, Elsie, of Columbus, O.; Rebecca Smith, of Boston; Mrs. William Waters and Margaret Emmu, of New York.

HEINEMANN TO FIGHT WIFE'S DIVORCE SUIT

Otto F. C. Heinemann, No. 136 School street, Somerville, prominent dancing master and president of the Dancing Masters' Association of America, will oppose the legal fight of his wife for separate maintenance.

Mrs. Heinemann attempted suicide by shooting herself two months ago following alleged inattention on the part of her husband.

John E. Sparks, counsel for Heinemann, made a blanket denial that a blond widow had won Heinemann's love and thus driven Mrs. Heinemann to make an attempt on her life.

Heinemann intimated he would prefer counter charges.

MANY REQUESTS TO SEE LEVIATHAN

Requests for permission to inspect the Leviathan at the naval dry dock, South Boston, becomes more insistent daily. Four hundred and seventy-six applications by mail for the privilege of going through the ship were received and each letter was duly considered by Captain W. F. Hennard, marine superintendent. No definite announcement concerning the date when the ship will be thrown open to the public can be made until a tentative program submitted by Gibbs Bros., Inc., who are reconditioning the ship, have been approved by A. Bright Spots in Shadowland

FILMING scenes for a motion picture more than 10,000 feet above sea level was the record achieved by the Cosmopolitan Company making "Unseeing Eyes," a screen adaption of Arthur Stringer's story "Snowblind."

The company has returned from two months location around Banff and Lake Louise, Canada, with what are said to be the most remarkable scenes ever made in the Canadian wilderness. Not only were dangerous camera subjects demonstrated over and over again in the filming of the picture, but in its making the Cosmopolitan Company established another record in that it scaled the Canadian Rockies in mid-winter, the first time this feat has ever been accomplished. One of the big scenes in "Unseeing Eyes" is a thrilling aeroplane flight through the Canadian Rockies. In making this particular scene, Director E. H. Griffith had the services of Charles Sherman "Chas." Jones, chief test pilot of the Curtis Company, and Captain William G. Sharpe, who served as a flyer with the British Army in Mesopotamia during the war and who is licensed to pilot in Canada.

VIOLA DANA, convalescing after an operation for appendicitis, amused herself by sending hourly bulletins describing her condition to her associates at the Metro studios. Her first communication was as follows: "At last reports, the patient, Viola Dana, was sinking rapidly. She was reading '20,000 Leagues Under the Sea.'"

An hour later followed another bulletin.

"All hope is given up for Viola Dana, the beautiful victim of the popular malady, appendicitis. She has refused to read letters from movie fans, or autograph photographs, or confer with a publicity man."

Studio Notes

HOBART BOSWORTH was born in the State the Presidents come from—Ohio. Both English and Dutch blood run in his veins, the latter nationality indicated by his interesting middle name, Van Zandt.

PAULINE STARKE, who recently was declared by Miss Neysa McMein, celebrated illustrator, to be the most beautiful actress of the screen, has been selected for an important role in Emmett Flynn's first Goldwyn picture, "In the Palace of the King."

By BETTY ALDEN.

ONE of the prettiest girls at the horse show held out Chestnut Hill way the other day was Laura Taylor, while one of the most fashionably gowned was Mrs. "Ollie" Ames, Jr. The list of entrants beat all previous records for the Chestnut Hill shows—Wednesday's event was the 20th, by the way—it was certainly a record-breaker as far as the spectators were concerned.

Miss Taylor's blue eyes and very blonde hair were set off most effectively by her simple pink frock with a tiny gray hat to complete it. Mrs. Ames' slim figure was as matchlessly gowned as ever in an all-brown costume, her coat, one of those rather long, tight affairs so much in vogue just now. Apropos of the one-time Caroline Pessenden, her youngest sister, Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow (Rose Fessenden), a bride of last January, was there, garbed, as usual, in blue. Another sister, Mrs. Freddy Rusk (Harriet Fessenden), was also in the smart throng.

Energetic Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, who's imported and sold no end of Mah Jong sets for the Simmons College endowment fund, was there to watch her popular son, Eddy Webster, Jr., ride "Decoration" from the ring midst a good deal of applause. I noted that tall and boyish-looking Peggy Porter, daughter of the Charles Allen Porters, was mounted on "Pepper Pot." Mrs. George West's gray redding.

WEBSTER'S END OPENS CLARK BREACH

Worcester June 1 The recent suicide of Professor Arthur Gould Webster of the department of physics at Clark University evoked the breach between President William W. Atwood and members of the faculty to such extent there will be many changes in the teaching personnel.

In a statement in which he declares charges made by four former and present members of the faculty and declares that many of the students' body are "misled by certain professors," President Atwood says:

"Next year I think there will be no faculty members here but who are loyal to the administration. There may be critical but we will not have to contend with such an antagonistic group as we have had in the past."

The five critics of Dr. Atwood accuse him of causing "complete disintegration of the faculty and college morale" and with "purposely neglecting the famous graduate schools in favor of his own department program."

The men who accuse Dr. Atwood are Dr. Elsin G. Boring, professor of psychology at Harvard formerly of the Clark staff; Dr. Frank H. Hankins, professor of sociology at Smith College; Dr. Kimball Young, assistant professor of psychology at Clark, who is returning to Oregon next month; Dr. Harry E. Barnes, professor of history at Clark, who is leaving for Smith, and Dr. Carroll C. Pratt, instructor in philosophy and psychology at Harvard.

Dr. Webster was prompted to take his life because of fear he was going to lose his position, his son and others intimate with him claimed after his death.

It has been rumored since that Webster was among those who had incurred the presidential displeasure and that his name was on the list of those slated to go from the university.

The ill feeling between certain of the professors and Dr. Atwood is said to date back to the time when he failed to stop Prohibition and turned off the milk and fruit juice beer. Nearing was thrown out of the special...

Farmer's Cash in Bank When Robbers Call

FIND STOLEN BONDS IN BOSTON

Indictment of a State Street Broker to Be Sought in Maryland

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

000, stolen from two Maryland banks a year ago, have been recovered here by Boston authori-

The bonds, pledged as security for loans, were handled by a State street ship broker, whose indictment will be sought at the next meeting of the Carroll and Frederick Counties Grand Jury in Maryland.

The securities were located ten days ago by Inspectors John A. Dorsey and George Augusta, accompanied by Inspector William G Noble of the Maryland State Police.

Maryland bank authorities were notified and coming to Boston identified all the bonds, which were stolen from the Woodbine National Bank of Woodbine, Md and the Monrovia Savings Bank of Monrovia Md.

FOUND IN BANKS.

The officers located the missing securities in the possession of the Federal National Bank of the city, the Broadway National Bank of Chelsea and the Beacon Coal Company Old South building.

The present holders of the bonds have been warned not to dispose of them, pending action by the Maryland authorities according to Chief Inspector John R. McGarr.

Chief McGarr declined to make a statement other than to confirm the announcement that the bonds had been located.

From other sources it was learned that the bonds had been located by the local authorities after a search extending over a considerable period.

ROBBERY A YEAR AGO

The Monrovia bank was broken into and robbed the night of May 20, 1922, and bonds valued at $50,000 stolen. Four days later a similar robbery occurred in the Woodbine bank.

In turn two men were convicted in Maryland and one a New Jersey man of the robberies and were sentenced to jail. Some of the bonds were also recovered. The rest of the remainder led to Boston.

Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta were assigned to the case. It was learned that the State street ship broker had pledged seven bonds at the Federal National Bank for a loan of $7,500. The Broadway National Bank had four bonds, as security for a $5,000 loan, and the Beacon Coal Company had taken one bond on a loan of $1,000. These bonds were on both the Woodbine and Monrovia banks, later identification proved.

BROKER'S EXPLANATION.

The ship broker said he received the bonds from a South American who was desirous of purchasing a steamer for coastwise trading. The steamer and to be owned by the broker in question, still is his possession, although the alleged negotiations took place a year ago.

The broker said the South American deposited the $16,000 worth of bonds as a first payment on the boat, but had failed to make any other payments. The broker admitted pledging the bonds as security for loans. He is under surveillance and if indicted will be arrested for the Maryland authorities.

NAMESTERS!

What can you do with your name?

Can you make a funny sentence out of it? Or a wise sentence? Or a snappy one? Or a slangy one? Or any kind of a sentence?

The Boston American offers a dollar to any one who sends in a bright or unusual sentence made up of the first letters of either your FIRST, middle or LAST name.

Every one printed gets a dollar. Each week a prize of $5 will be given to the best one used that week.

Everybody in Boston takes a shot at this game. It's plenty of fun trying to figure out the different sentences you can make in this way. And if you get one printed it means a dollar, or $5 if it is the best one printed during the week.

Send as many as you like. Make up sentences from your first, middle or last name. Nobody is barred.

GOAT GRABBERS

The storekeeper who proudly advertises he is willing to show goods, sale or no sale, and, in the event you don't buy, gets sassy.

The dumb Isaac who thinks canoes were made as a substitute for rockers.

The rabid baseball fan who tears a newspaper into shreds and then scatters it all over you.

The sap who, no matter what clothes you wear, is always ready to criticize the pattern.

The poor yap who says every rich man came by his money either through shrewdness, luck or just plain dishonesty.

TRY 'N GET IT

Your wife to realize that you are not by nature a night watchman, so are not interested when the baby yells at night, or supposed to be just going to work.

A job where you are ordered to tour Europe on some important mission.

An income tax collector to make a mistake and return you ninety bucks, saying you paid too much.

A bootlegger to have "a real gain day" or a "fire sale," or a closing out sale after a raid.

A woman to get up and give you her seat in a crowded car, you being a mere man with arms full of bundles, babies and the like.

Satisfaction from an argument w.a the dumbwaiter.

The doctor to slip you half a dozen prescriptions when you pay your bill.

A non-stop dancer to do some work around the house or any girl who "can die dancing" to do the family dishes without turning up her nose or falling into a faint.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

Continuing the Interesting and Intensely Human Adventures of Anne and Jim

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winslow, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Elsy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation.

By Ann Lisle

"YES, ma'am!" I replied heartily but with my mind more on the fact that there was a heavy burden of work to take up an that we'd never be able to get on with someone in Miss May's place if we were going to have analytical discussions during office hours. That once it was my health and last night it was Phoebe's that kept me from going to Rosa's. And you're the best substitute I'd ask."

"Is Phoebe all right?" asked Betty absent mindedly and waiting only for my assurance that Neal had given me good tidings over the telephone this morning, she went on abruptly: "Did Jim tell you about Ruth Gregers?"

"Yes, a little. She must be a very clever woman. He dwelt more on your friendship for her than on any other phase of the visit to her studio."

"She said she'd like Jim to sit for her. Said he had the keen eyes and the sensitive nostrils and the exactly poised head she'd been looking for to do 'The Young Artist.' She's a great artist, Anne—but she's also a woman."

"Granted," I laughed. "Is Jim going to sit?"

"Oh, she'll probably forget all about it. Ruth is long on forgetting," said Betty. "I'm lucky she remembers me. She always had a queue of men trailing along after her even in France. She's so charming and magnetic that you forget she's a rather untidy looking person, with only the rudiments of manners."

"Queer you should be interested." I replied. "She doesn't sound alluring. And now don't you think it would be a good idea, friend partner, if we took up the burden of earning our living?"

"The best," replied Betty gayly. "But I thought it was also a—good idea to talk things over with you a bit while they were—fresh in my mind."

"Of course." I agreed. "I didn't mean to seem rude or ungrateful for your interest in my affairs. And I'll tell you frankly I was once jealous of Sissy, but I'm not such a silly any more. Jim's the most devoted of husbands—in his own way."

"In his own way," repeated Betty. "It's a good thing to keep in mind that Jim—has a way with him. Heigho! I am a gloomy, sceptical thing! Don't mind me, Anne."

But I went to my desk with a vaguely disturbed feeling that seemed all out of proportion with anything Betty had said—or Jim had done.

For a week or more after the attack of hysteria which so frightened Neal and me Phoebe occupied the centre of the stage as far as our family was concerned. She was quiet and depressed, so Jeanie, Jim, Pat and I spent all our leisure hours with her. Finally she recovered a measure of good spirits such as she hadn't shown for months, and our lives began to drift back to their everyday interests.

Praise From Jim

"No getting away from it," Jim said to Jeanie as we were driving home in Pat's car, "that young Neal is a wonder of wonders! He is just about sick with worry. Any one can see that he'd have to be. But does he acknowledge it? No, sir! Not even to himself."

"I'm beginning to love Neal almost as dearly as Phoebe—and you know what that means, don't you, Anne?" asked Jeanie graciously.

I squeezed her hand as I replied in a voice I couldn't keep steady.

"We've all come close this past week. I'm so proud that you all see my Neal as I do. He's the dearest boy in the world. He has a sweetness and a chivalry that didn't fall even w[illegible] on a hot blooded youngster [illegible] "He's some of his red headed qualities yet, never be fearing," laughed Pat. "And they give him the fine courage he goes right on showing at the day's work when another lad would be whimpering because his night's rest had been spoiled."

"He's all right, declared Jim, close. Reverently in my heart I kept thinking: "A little child shall lead them."

For days I haven't seen a thing of Betty outside business hours. We never lunch together, since it wouldn't be a wise plan for both of us to be away from the office at the same time. Betty, however, doesn't look as if a lack of my society was causing her to pine away. She gives me to understand that she's scored a great deal of Ruth Gregory and that her time is beginning to be filled in very pleasantly. I was grateful to Ruth Gregory for brightening Betty's lonely life.

Missing Mabel

Then one day I awoke to the fact that I was seeing nothing of Mabel. We had occasional telephonic communications about the Dalton Sturges advertisements which are being featured in Hildane's. But our talks were all of business. Naturally the happier I am, the less time I have for anyone but Jim, and the more inclined I am to reproach myself for it when I realize the state of selfishness into which its so easy to drift.

So, one afternoon when I found my desk getting pretty well cleared off, I dismissed myself for the day at about 5, and, with business as my pretext, went over to Hildane's to call on Mabel.

DRAWN BY PEGGY PRENTICE

C-2 Copyright, 1923, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE magic which lies in a lover's flower whose petals are white and whose heart is gold may be even more wondrous than appears to the first eager glance. Or, if you look at it with the eyes of belief this flower may give the answer the heart hungers to know.

But what about the answer that the very act of seeking your answer gives to one who sees? Isn't the very act of questioning the flower an answer in itself to what has troubled him?

Can anyone who loves look at a flower without thinking of the one beloved? And isn't there something especially appropriate in the fact that the petals of this flower are white and that its heart is pure gold?

PEGGY PRENTICE.

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

"Phoebe told me that he sits up with her for hours if she happens to be wakeful. Once, she said, he read to her half the night. But he's never late to work. I don't know where the young fellow gets the strength. But if ever a man was in love it's Neal. Well, children, can we persuade you to spend the night, or are you insisting on Dreamwold, as usual?"

"We're silles about that," confessed Jeanie with a laugh. "But when the time comes to be in town near Phoebe, I'm going to take up Anne's offer and spend a fortnight with you."

After we'd said good night and Jim and I had reached our apartment, he said thoughtfully:

"Say, we Harrisons sure have got together over our little Phoebekins. Takes a little trouble to shake a family know where it stands. You and Neal are right in the fold now, Lilac Princess. Like it?"

A Cynical Assurance

"I feel very happy tonight, dear," I told him. "Not only for myself—but because you all love Neal and see what a wonder he is."

And so the hard work I was doing at my office seemed only a zestful way of earning the happiness and contentment that came when Phoebe grew so well and happy and eager for what the next few months would bring. Our family tree were knitting

PREHISTORIC STUDY

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

AN uncommon departure in education is indicated by the American School in France for Prehistoric Studies, which, under the direction of Ales Hrdlicka, of the United States National Museum, is its third year on July 1, at London, with some change in its programme.

The purpose of this novel school is to give American students of archaeology "first-hand knowledge" of the vestiges of man's antiquity and evolution in the old world. The students, under expert guidance, will study the contents of the European museums of archaeology, visit the places where relics of ancient man have been found, and then work at some of the actual sites where excavations and discoveries are at present being made.

Conspicuous among the prehistoric sites in England is Piltdown, where the teeth of the now famous "dawn man" were found in 1912, lying in the gravels of the upper Tertiary period. The question whether they had belonged to a very primitive form of man or to an out-and-out chimpanzee, is regarded by Dr. Hrdlicka as practically settled in favor of the first hypothesis by their peculiarities. Although they resemble the teeth of the extinct one classified under the name of Dryopithecus rhenanus, yet "primitive as they are in some respects, they are already human, or close to human."

These peculiarities of the Piltdown remains have led to a new suggestion concerning the origin of man. Dr. Hrdlicka now raises the query whether man may not have evolved altogether in Western Europe. Hitherto it has been widely assumed that the first representatives of the human species came into Europe from Asia.

To show how full of "questionable matter" the whole subject is, and so to indicate what an abundance of material for study and discovery the students of this new traveling and exploring school will have at command, I remind the reader that near the spot where the jaw containing these tell-tale teeth lay was found part of a cranium to which it has reasonably been assumed that the jaw belonged. But Dr. Hrdlicka, after a detailed examination, concludes that the Piltdown jaw is which older than the skull now near it and to which it was supposed to belong. Indeed, he ranks the Piltdown jaw as much older than that of the Heidelberg man or those of any of the other ancient cave men discovered in Europe.

The most remarkable sites of ancient man on the Continent of Europe are those found in France and Spain, but there are many in Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Croatia and Austria. The members of the school after visiting these are to practice excavation on some favorable site in France and during the Winter to pursue their studies in Paris.

In the course in which the more advanced races of the stone age dwelt beautiful specimens of prehistoric art are to be found, and the study of these must have an important bearing upon the story of human evolution and should throw light upon questions of psychology.

Fascinating discoveries certainly await students of primitive man who can penetrate a little way into his psychology, a clue which ought to be found among his remains and the many marks that he has left on his passage on the earth.

LAWYERS IN LUCK TODAY

ASTROLOGERS read this as an uncertain day in planetary direction. Although Venus and Jupiter are in benefic aspect Mars and Neptune are adverse.

Constipation is largely responsible for a condition that leads to real danger. Auto-intoxication means diseases unless it is not checked. Worked backward from constipation, or lack of it, is the basis of a majority of human ailments that could be headed off if people would only help rid themselves of this serious, health-undermining condition, which could be easily done.

Constipation must be fought to a finish—not with pills and cathartics, which are dangerous to the delicate membranes of the intestines and temporary at best—but with nature's greatest cereal health food—Bran—Kellogg's Bran, which is as delicious as it is beneficial.

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful in its work because it is ALL BRAN. And to get permanent relief, ALL BRAN is necessary, for it is the "bulk" of Kellogg's Bran that sweeps and purifies, ridding the system of poisons and curing conditions of years. Eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—at least one tablespoonful daily—in most cases with each meal in chronic cases—and we guarantee that you will get relief permanently and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. You do not have to learn to like it. Eat it as a cereal or sprinkle on or mix with hot or cold cereals. Or, cook it with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls for each person. Kellogg's makes wonderful muffins, griddle cakes, raisin bread, macaroons, etc. Recipes on package.

Leading hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

SUCCESS IS YOURS

IF YOU ONLY BELIEVE IN IT ENOUGH

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Who Holds a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls.

"HE doesn't know when he's licked," said Jerry thoughtfully. "This is the third time he's been half way up the ladder and now he's kicked off to the bottom again. But he doesn't know enough to quit——"

"You don't have to know much to quit," I interrupted. "What takes a lot of wisdom is to know enough to stick."

That is true.

You never saw a pendulum which didn't swing as far to the left as to the right if you let it express itself normally. You never saw a Winter—however storm and cold and forbidding—which didn't end and make way for Spring.

Every year when the gaunt crown trees put out their tiny buds, you see the miracle of resurrection on which life itself is built. Can you imagine a tree that it is licked?" Can you fancy a bush or a plant saying:

"What's the use? I put out leaves and flowers every year and get into fine shape and then along come cold and frost and destroy all the work I've been at such pains to do. Why should I bloom again? What's the use of the folks that is bound to be ruined by the seasons no matter how much strength energy I put into it? I'm through. It doesn't get me anywhere. Each year I end up in the same place. This year I won't start."

Suppose you do get up two rungs of the ladder and then get knocked off to the ground again? At least, you've been up those two rungs. You know you can travel that far. You don't know how much further you can go. You don't know when you'll get such a good start toward the top that you'll just naturally keep on going until you land right where you want to be.

It doesn't matter what you have done. You don't have to keep on doing it if it is wrong or impractical. You don't have to carry it around as a handicap when you decide to shake it off.

The man who stages a comeback does it because it never occurs to him to quit.

The man who gets thrown back for a loss has every right to believe that he's learning enough from losses and that some day—some time—somewhere he is going to cash in on his knowledge and build his future success right on the monument to his past failure.

As long as you keep faith in life and faith with yourself there is every reason to suppose that you are going to succeed. It has been done so often and it is so characteristic of all life—animate and inanimate, that only the mentally blind can fail to see that comebacks are the most natural thing in the world.

Just keep on going. The road leads somewhere. You cut your mental teeth on disappointment and failure. You build your success on your ability to take a "licking" without ever acknowledging that you the beaten.

Nothing can make you a failure save your belief in failure.

Do You Know That—

TIRED, TENDER FEET—
JUST take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning feet of yours in a basin of "TIZ" bath.
When your feet feel like lumps of lead—as if tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, bunions and bunnions.
There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisons and acids which puff up your feet and cause foot tortures.
A few cents buys a box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.

WINCARNIS
Restores Strength
"I found Wincarnis very beneficial for weakness and when in a run-down condition. It is several years ago since I first tried this preparation and now whenever I need a tonic I turn to Wincarnis.
Some time ago my mother was in need of a tonic after recovering from a severe illness. I bought her a large bottle of Wincarnis which soon gave her back her strength.
Also my brother-in-law, who not long ago was down with Influenza, is now taking your Wincarnis as a restorative and it is doing him a lot of good.
I always recommend Wincarnis to anyone I know who is in need of a good tonic."

Civil War Breaks Out in Ranks of the A. A. U.

NEW BODY OUT FOR POWER

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, June 1.—Civil war has broken out within the Amateur Athletic Union.

This organization, which once ruled amateur affairs in the United States with an iron hand, has been defied by its own members and there are many who fear that within a year it will be shorn of most of its remaining power and that the new National Amateur Athletic Federation will succeed it in the matter of athletic authority.

There's a long list of individuals in organization which recently has defied the A. A. U. The Southern Pacific Association is the latest to add its name to the rebellious crowd. Its position was taken when the A. A. U. refused to permit Charlie Paddock, the runner, to go to Europe and participate in the French games there.

Paddock Defied Rules of Amateur Sport.

Paddock went to Europe despite the failure to get full permission from the A. A. U. and this organization called its attitude to the French amateur officials, who event many barred Paddock because there is a working agreement whereby France backs up the United States.

Late in the Fall or early in the Winter of 1923 there will come a show down between those who are piloting the A. A. U. and the organizations which are members of the A. A. U.—and yet are in rebellious mood concerning the outfit.

It is freely predicted by those who are familiar with the affairs that unless the A. A. U. officials abandon their "autocratic" attitude toward organizations and individuals that there will be a secession from the A. A. U. in such volume as to leave it with nothing more than a name and a telephone number.

JOE EAGAN HOME, AFTER McTIGUE

Joe Eagan is back home once more.

After winning two decisions and fighting two draws in the West, the Dorchester warrior is in our midst seeking action.

Joe Eagan

"Eagan is one of the few fighters who has a decision to his credit over McTigue," said Block today. "Joe always could defeat the clever fellows. McTigue isn't a socker and so cannot stand up with Eagan. The latter can jab and side step with the best of them."

Block then displayed a certified check for $1,000, which he is willing to post with anybody who can get Joe Jacobs, McTigue's manager, to give consideration to Eagan's demands.

MITCHELL WILL SHIFT NINE AROUND

By NICK FLATLEY

Manager Mitchell of the Braves realizes that he needs a new deal so he is shuffling his athletes all around. Eventually he will hit on a combination that can get out in front in a ball game and stay there. Several times thus far, he has almost had the thing rigged properly, but there's always some little out.

Just now Mitch has his three fastest patrols in the garden—Southworth, Powell and Nixon. He has Bob Smith anchored at short and that same youth is showing the natives a wonderful arm and a lot of flashy fielding.

Gus Felix, who has been outfielding, is trying things out at second and may glue himself to the job. He was an infielder in the minor leagues—rated a good one—and he has a chance to help the team to recover its breath.

Billy Smith, who scouts for the Washington Senators, told us in Florida that he had watched Felix play twenty-five games at third base for Shreveport in the Texas League a year ago, and Billy admitted that Gus looked better than anybody he had seen in the bushes for many a long day.

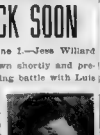
The Senators wanted the youngster, but the Braves pulled him out of the bag. Felix is a good enough hitter to remain on any inner defence if he can scoop up the nasty rounders. He has shown decided ability that way in the far parts, and naturally should do the same in where they hop right off the bat.

The Robins who play tomorrow as well as this P. M. are a much snappier ball club now than they ever expected to be this season. In the south the club was all shot, and didn't expect to get anywhere.

But in the last few weeks, Toreo or four of Robbie's pitchers have come through consistently, and the team has been winning. And now the boys really believe they have a chance to be in the money. When a club gets that way, it's hard to stop.

JESS WILLARD TO BE BACK SOON

New York, June 1.—Jess Willard will arrive in town shortly and prepare for his coming battle with Luis Firpo, which will be staged at Boyle's Thirty Acres early in July. While the Pottawatomie Giant hasn't announced his training program, he will undoubtedly anchor at Yonkers, where he got in shape for Floyd Johnson.



Jess Willard

White Trailing Curtin

New York, June 1.—Jabez White, of Albany, who meets Danny Edwards, the colored demon, in the twelve-round bout at the reopening of the Oakland A. A. in Jersey City on Monday evening, is hot on the trail of "Irish" Johnny Curtin.

Kilbane and Criqui Both Say They Will Gain Victory

By EUGENE CRIQUI,
Champion Featherweight of Europe

My condition is perfect. I was never stronger and have never been able to hit so hard. My sparring partners tell me they are worn out. I have kept them going at a fast pace some have criticised me for using only French boxers and men heavier than myself, but that is the only way I have trained successfully in the past and I am sure I did not make a mistake.

Eugene Criqui

I have stopped my last twenty-one opponents I have met in the ring and am sure that I will stop Kilbane in six or seven rounds. I am too strong for him and will make him fight too fast.

I am not afraid of him, because I cannot hurt me. If I defeat Kilbane I will be ready to defend the title against Dundee before I return to France. I have done all my work outdoors under the same conditions under which we will fight and in the same ring as we will use. There is no doubt about it, I will win.

By JOHNNY KILBANE,
World's Featherweight Champion

I never was in better shape. When I signed to meet Criqui four months ago I began to get into condition on my farm in Cornwallon, Ohio. I lived in the open air; worked in the fields, took to the road each morning, kept regular hours and slowly but surely rounded into form.

I was ready to step into the ring when I arrived in New York. The important thing for me was to recover my judgment of distance. I knew I could still hit, in fact today I can hit harder than ever. I have boxed every day with two or three fast young fellows and they have helped me perfect my judgment of distance.

Johnny Kilbane

I have no excuse if I am defeated. It must be remembered, that I have always lived the simple life. In fact I have never been out of condition. I will enter the ring with the fullest confidence and I am certain that I will be the winner. Then I will be ready for Dundee. And after that, win or lose, I will retire.

TWO FEATURE RACES FOR REVERE

Two feature races, a special sprint match and a three mile free-for-all, featured motor-paced races that have been arranged for the Revere Beach Speedway for a card of races at the Revere track. The sprint match will see the return of Nat Chandler, the colored five-time champion of the Revere track. Last year Chandler rode to victory after a thrilling duel with Clarence Carman, who has since gone abroad and gained a great reputation across the water as the "American Indian." Opposed to Chandler will be Jim Cohert of Newark. They will ride best two-out-of-three heats.

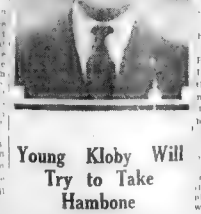
Clarence Carman.

For the paced division Manager Butler will install a novice number in the person of Larry Gaffney, an Irish youth from Brooklyn. Gaffney has competed in five races so far this season and has finished in the van in all of them. Frankie Keenan, Gustav Ganay of France, and Clarence Carman are the other entries for this contest.

CORNETS' PITCHER CLOUTS HOME RUN

The Cornets gathered five runs in the third inning of their twilight game against North Cambridge at Little River Playground, and to make sure they could put the game in the bag scored four more before the umpire rang down the curtain. Davidson, the lank pitcher for the Cornets, not only hurled good ball for a cold day, but did something which few hurlers accomplish. He clouted in a home run with two men on. That was in the big inning for the Cornets.

Kloby Coming Back



Young Kloby Will Try to Take Hambone

Young Kloby, Y. I. will try to knock Hambone for a flock of goals at Cycle Track on Labor Day, but will be subject to rejection of the Fenway Park. HOCKEY LEAGUE CUT TO FIVE TEAMS

The Boston Field Hockey Association has been reorganized, but instead of eight clubs there will be only five members. The league will have a Fall season of ten games.

The team members are: Free Booters, Graduates, Junior League, Lexington and Motley. Last year, the Junior League club went by the name of Debutantes, and as last Fall it will be made up of society debutantes of the Back Bay.

Mrs. Charles G. Loring of Boston president and Miss Gertrude Robinson of Manchester, secretary. The season will be opened again next fall with a series of field hockey tournaments at Philadelphia, Pa., when the championship will be decided.

Lexington Plays Belmont

The Lexington High boys' tennis team will attempt to defeat Belmont this afternoon. Both teams have strong batteries and interesting matches will be played.

KOTSONAROS IS FASTER THAN CARPENTIER AND GREB

GREEK SHOWED UP CALZA IN MAT BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

George Kotsonaros, Greek light-heavyweight champion, who battles George Calza, Italian champion, in a finish bout at the Boston Arena next Wednesday night, is faster than Georges Carpentier and Harry Greb.

George Kotsonaros

We do not believe that anybody who has seen the three men in action will question the statement.

Carpentier proved in court when he is as fast as a comet as Jack Dempsey will admit. Greb is a human windmill, hitting, feinting and tossing gloves in all directions. Harry, however, takes little punishment.

Kotsonaros, weighing 188 pounds, can maintain a dizzy pace even though he receives heavy punishment himself.

The greatest exhibition of wrestling ever witnessed in this city was the closing twenty minutes of the bout between Kotsonaros-Calza bout. The big fellows had been battling for two hours and naturally were beginning to show the effects of their great work.

Of the two men Calza was the most tired. Perhaps this was what inspired Kotsonaros to start his sensational attack. He stepped around the Italian with the grace and precision of a dancing master. He had the Great Unbeaten floundering like a ship upon a stormy sea.

The Greek then started to use his head holds. He clamped them on almost at will. He would fight much like a boxer, step inside and apply the deadly headlock. He did not experience much trouble in dropping Calza to the mat time and again. The Italian's tall-like strength was the only thing that saved him from defeat.

Illegal Tactics Gave Victory to Calza

The constant application of the headlock finally weakened Calza. His eyes were glassy, his breath came in pants, his arms and legs were weary. He just appeared to be staring him in the face.

Charge it to desperation, if you are charitable. Otherwise say Calza was not game enough to meet defeat. Anyhow, the Italian champion seized Kotsonaros much like a drowning man does a log, forced himself for one more mighty effort, lifted his foe into the air and hurled him over the ropes out into the crowd.

Kotsonaros was injured by the

THE HE MAN By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Thrilling Story of Man and Girl Who Are Utter Strangers Living Together in African Jungle

The He-Man forced his way through the undergrowth of the jungle

HOW THE STORY STARTS:

ANDREA PELLOR, the daughter of an impoverished British baron, is engaged to a millionaire diamond merchant whom she does not love. Sneaking away from the Indian Ocean Hotel she sees a flying machine on the beach, being gotten ready to ascend by two men, a white and a giant black. Upon the spur of the moment she cries: "Take me with you!" He straps her in and they are away. She becomes frightened and asks to be taken back. He says he is not going back. The engine goes wrong and they land in the midst of a village in the African jungle. The natives hail him as a friend. He sends for a trunk which he had prepared for her in and they are away. She becomes frightened and for his sister and gives it to Andrea.

CHAPTER XII.

"CERTAINLY," he answered, absorbed in his topic. "Exchanged where there's another daughter available; where there isn't, money is refunded by order of the courts. The native legislation on the subject is absolutely complete. But what I was driving at is that in spite of the contention mentioned above, wherever a woman is concerned a black can never get it out of his head that she can be replaced at the regular market price. Now you've got the kernel of his whole attitude toward women."

"So if it had been you they wouldn't have laughed and yelled."

"In this case, yes," he said. They most certainly would, because they had no direct responsibility. But where responsibility attaches the rule for men is a life for a life and it's a rule that has no exceptions. You're leading me into a maze of folk-law but ill you are really interested I'll give you an example that will throw the main fact into highlight."

"Oh, I'm interested all right," said Andrea. "If you were looking at me I'd yawn."

"Well, here you are then," continued M'ungo, inwardly and unconsciously pleased by the talk as is every man when he is master of his subject. "If a native run amok and attacks his neighbor it's up to the neighbor to beat it; for, if he kills the madman, even in desperate self-defence, he will have to replace him with a man from his own family who becomes a marketable slave. By the same token it is up to the kin of the madman to kill him promptly because they must make good with another for every male he does away with."

"What a saving to the State," remarked Andrea. "No asylums, no brain-storm trials!"

"You're persiflaging," said M'ungo, "but, as a matter of fact, the system is little short of genius. The point I was going to bring out, however, is that any one can brain a woman if he feels like it and get away with the identical chobo her husband paid for her."

"You seem to be a great admirer of the native social system," said Andrea quietly.

"I am," answered M'ungo. "For natives, of course."

"Are you sure you're not a bit tainted with it for yourself?"

"Sure," he answered promptly. "That's part of the secret of my grip on every country I've shot over. I'm mad, I've never turned my back on the White Man's God. Circular A is not for me."

"What's Circular A?"

He hesitated. "Circular A," he said finally, "is the regulation that governs the relations between British officials under the Colonial Office and the women of the tribes they govern."

"I'm British," said Andrea, after a pause, "and I blush for the necessity."

"You are prompt, like most of us," said M'ungo, "to sit in judgment before any force of nature that you've never felt. Poor devils of clean-bred youngsters! Take one that I knew. Three weeks' training under his predecessor, crazy to leave; a hundred thousand natives under his sole rule; one, perhaps two, bearded white faces a year. The long, long days after the sportsman has been swallowed by the pot-hunter, when game becomes just meat! The hallucination that here is eternity, come before its time! And then the fatal hour at dusk when a passing native girl—any girl—looks to him like some woman at home! He marries, damn it, not by canonicals perhaps, but by the common law of the land, and the people at home shout 'cruelty film,' but in the end it's God alone that will judge his agony and measure the price."

He stopped speaking and for a long time they traveled in silence. The sun was sinking fast—so fast that it seemed to be dropping by jerks, like the loose hand of a grandfather's clock. Its long level rays, robbed of heat, swept over the plains and appeared to bank up against the young leaves of the tembu forest into billowing heaps of copper. In the distance, the huts of the crual cropped into view above the level of the black grass. The sun glorified them, too. They looked like a covey of partridges snuggling down, keeping very still to evade the eye of the hunter.

"There is no twilight in the tropics," said M'ungo, "by the deliberate judgment of God who knows the capacity of the heart of man and would not have it burst."

"I can feel what you mean," answered Andrea, "even though you haven't really said it in words. The heart can hold just so much beauty and no more; and even now, mine is aching."

"Andrea Pelior," said M'ungo, "you have the faculty of your sex. You have pinned the butterfly."

Sudden Revulsion

She felt a sudden revulsion, a rage at this man, this stranger, who talked as she imagined he would fight, without shame. Her eyes narrowed. "When I asked you," she said presently, "if you weren't tainted with the native view-point toward women, I didn't have in mind anything physical or nasty. It seemed to me——— By the way, when Marguerite bolted, just what was it you shouted at me?"

He paused in his stride so suddenly that the doting monkey butted into him and almost knocked him over. "Eh? What?" he asked again time.

"Come on," persisted Andrea. "Just say it again—what you shouted."

"Well," fled M'ungo. "I may not remember the exact words but it was to the effect that you'd better head him off or jump off."

"Something like that," said Andrea pensively, "only shorter. You yelled, 'Marry him or jump off!'"

"I believe you're right," said M'ungo and added apologetically, "You see, I didn't have much time to think."

"Exactly!" said Andrea. "Instinctively all you saw was a joke like every nigger in the line. You didn't care what happened to me. I might have been brained under that tree and you knew it and all you could think of was that you just had time to get in one more nasty bit of cleverness before—before I died."

"Oh, no," protested M'ungo. "Go easy, now. Why, Marguerite has done that dozens of times. He knows exactly how to slice off his rider. And besides, he always stops."

"But what if he hadn't—what if he had?" continued Andrea hotly. "Oh, you know what I mean. What if he had killed me?"

"But he wouldn't," insisted the man weakly. "He wouldn't think of it."

Andrea pounded the horn of her saddle. "But—what—if—he—had!"

M'ungo suddenly whirled, thereby winding the quiescent neck of Marguerite around his waist. He caught Andrea by both arms and fixed her startled eyes with the blaze of his own. "You will have it," he said, shaking her lightly, "your damned personal element! Well, I'll give it to you. If he'd hurt so much as a hair of your head, I'd have shot him and then myself and left word with you to bury us both in the same grave."

Flushed Hotly

She flushed and looked away. When her eyes came back to his set face there were three kinds of sparkling wickedness in them—tenderness, the forked, tongue of a serpent, and a two-edged knife. She chose the knife.

"While Mad," she said, "that would have been adorable at the price—simply adorable."

She was glad that followed were the remaking of Andrea physically. Each day she walked more and felt it less. From head to toes her body was without blemish and in her eyes, her cheeks and in the spring of her light step, sheer health flew its rejoicing banner. Day by day she followed M'ungo farther afield, took more of an interest in what he was doing because she understood it better and learned to wait before she sat in judgment on his actions, often surprising, always swift and assured. She even hardened herself to accompanying him on his hunts for meat for the camp pot and there was nothing that he did that gave her a deeper insight into his composition than this same butchering.

No Secret

He made no secret of his distate for the job and never an apology. Having a disagreeable task on his hands he faced it squarely and going out to kill, laid his plans, held to them with unswerving concentration and killed with a dispatch that was blood-curdling but admirable. Many a time Andrea saw his face light up at the sight of a lone spoor, sign of a lordly trophy. He would stop and discuss it in murmurs with the trackers and in the end, invariably turn from it with a sigh and march on to strike the wide swath of the herd.

Coming up with the rabbits—the mere cattle of the plains—he never lost sight of the main chance. "Chalicle," would implore the chosen in the dead whisper that does not carry and he would refuse to shoot, measuring the wind, testing the light and choosing his stance with a deliberation that was maddening to the unarmed looker-on. But when finally the rifle—one shot in the chamber and five more in the magazine—rang out his prescience was rewarded, his care rewarded. The bewildered game milled, ran toward him or by him—never into the eye of the sun. Striking like some bullock appraiser in a pathlock, he chose his victims for their weight and felled them with a far, sure blow.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

LIFE OF MADAME DU BARRY

By Mark Stuyvesant

JE m'ennite"—"I am bored"—was the continual wail of Louis XV. of France.

One day in 1763 this pleasure-loving monarch repeated this for possibly the thousandth time to his valet, Lebel.

On one occasion when he had said it before, Lebel had produced the famous Marquise de Pompadour, who subsequently reigned as his mistress. But now Pompadour was dead and his wife was dead.

Pompadour had established the Parfaux Carfe, a resort, where the King was amused by all the beauties she could cull from both the rich and poor families of the kingdom.

At this time, Lebel had met a charming young girl by the name of Mlle. l'Ange, who presided over the gambling house of her protector, Count Jean du Barry.

This fascinating young person was really named Vaubernier and before becoming Du Barry's proteges was a milliner's apprentice.

When driven to lengths to furnish Louis with divertissement, Lebel's first thought was to produce a new charmer.

This time he introduced at the Parcaux Cerfs Mlle. l'Ange.

Her conquest of the jaded ruler was immediate. She was fresh, flippant, vivacious, but best of all in his eyes, she was young and beautiful.

As Louis had conferred a title on the Marquise de Pompadour, it was necessary for her successor to have a title.

To negotiate this, the King ordered a cousin of the Count du Barry to marry her. The count was already married or he would have obliged his liege lord.

But in any mtz, Mlle. l'Ange became the Countess du Barry, and was thus qualified to be presented at court.

Here du Barry reigned like a queen. Although she was not ambitious to take part in politics, that responsibility was thrust upon her, because she was the favorite and therefore the power.

Du Barry dismissed ministers and made ministers. Even the young Princess Marie Antoinette was advised by her mother to treat her with courtesy and respect.

For eleven years du Barry, without the title but like a Queen, continued to rule France, for the very important reason that she reigned over the heart of the King of France.

Du Barry Ruled Like a Queen.

In 1793, when the revolution was rife, Du Barry fled to London, hoping to sell her jewels.

In 1793 she returned to Paris. At once she was brought before the tribunal of the Revolution, charged with conspiracy against the republic, dissolution of state funds and for wearing in London of "mourning for the tyrant."

On the 7th of December Du Barry was condemned to death and was beheaded that very evening.

Her life was despicable and her death ludicrous, for she died whimpering like a coward. But Du Barry's remarkable personality left its impress in history because she had been a dominant figure in the period in which she lived.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Is not marriage an open question, when it is alleged, from the beginning of the world, that such as are in the institution wish to get out and such as are out wish to get in?"

Here Emerson paraphrases, in his "Representative Men," Montaigne's old saying about marriage.

"He who goes to bed mellow, Lives as he ought to do, and dies an honest fellow."

This maxim from Fletcher's play "The Bloody Brother," has been revised by law in this country.

"God first planted a garden."

Lord Bacon thus shows himself a lover of gardens in his essay on "Gardens."

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

THE WOLVERINE FEARS ONLY ONE FOE

SO you want to know which is the most savage animal in the world, do you, children? Well, we have one right here on our own continent that is supposed to be more deadly than any other animal of its size and weight. It is called a wolverine, or glutton. This fearless fellow lives up in the north woods of the United States and Canada and is the terror of every animal except one, and the wolverine doesn't waste any time in getting out of that particular animal's way as quickly as possible.

I'll tell you how I happen to know this.

When Bobby, Bunny and I were camping in Canada we heard a great deal about the wolverine and how he would attack a deer or a great big bear and often kill them, although they were many times his size. You see, the wolverine isn't a big animal. He isn't much larger than a bear cub and looks like one, too, but he is mean and nasty and vicious.

Although I was very anxious to see a wolverine we didn't want to take any chances on getting too close to one. But one day we did by accident, although we were in no danger because the enemy of the wolverines was there, too.

We were tramping through the woods when suddenly Bunny, who had been darting in and out under the bushes, ran up to me and whispered:

"Be very quiet now. There's a mother wolverine with her two cubs just ahead of you."

I hesitated, saying:

"Don't you think we'd better go the other way, Bunny. I don't want to get mixed up with her if I can help it."

But Bunny, reassuring me, shook his head as he answered:

"You don't have to worry. The wolverine won't even give you a thought because she's scared to death herself and is as anxious to get away as you are."

"I was surprised and exclaimed in a low voice:

"I thought wolverines weren't afraid of anything."

But Bunny said:

"Come with me and see the one animal of which a wolverine is afraid."

We crept up quietly and what do you think we saw?

There was the brave wolverine as nervous and crinking as any frightened animal you ever saw. She was cuffing her two babies with her paw and trying to coax them away. Right near stood a great big, fat porcupine with all of his quills bristling like sharp needles.

"Why doesn't she attack him?" I whispered to Bunny. "I thought any mother animal would fight for her young."

Bunny looked very solemn, as he always does when he tells me some interesting thing about animals, and said:

"Wolverines are scared to death of porcupines. For when a wolverine attacks a porcupine and bites him he gets his mouth full of quills and can't get them out. You know, those quills stay in the wolverine's mouth and face and get sore and the wolverine dies. So this mother wolverine is just using her good common sense, trying to get her babies away without a fight. She knows that she might not only lose her babies, but lose her life, too."

We waited a moment—just long enough to see the mother wolverine finally coax her babies away and run into the bushes with them. Then we marched home.

CORRECT MANNERS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to greet the oldest first and the younger afterward, on the first meeting? And in bidding farewell is it proper to bid the oldest first or last?

A. M.

IT is proper, since all rules of courtesy pay deference to age, to greet the oldest first, in meeting a group of people. Upon leaving you should say good-bye first to the oldest guests. This is a very direct and graceful opportunity to show honor to age. Your question shows a discriminating wish to show this honor.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

At a 5 o'clock wedding in June is it correct to wear a derby hat with a tuxedo?

E. K.

A TUXEDO suit should not be worn before 6 o'clock in the evening. With the tuxedo it is correct to wear a straw hat or a derby hat.

ROMANCE OF JEWELS

—By Barbara Bayne—

THERE is a most remarkable and valuable collection of rare jewels and small works of art in the Grune Gewolbe (Green Vaults) in the royal palace at Dresden. Chief among the precious gems is the finest green diamond known in the world. Purchased by Augustus the Strong, in 1743, for 60,000 thalers, it is an almond-shaped brilliant of the most remarkable beauty, absolutely flawless, of a bright apple green in color. It weighs 48¼ carats.

Another famous gem in the collection in the Grune Gewolbe is the White Saxon Brilliant, which, though not so rare as the Dresden Green brilliant, is described as one of the finest diamonds known. It is a square-cut brilliant—a type of cutting which reveals to the full the diamond's amazing fire. The brilliant cut has 58 facets and was discovered by Vincenzio Peruzzi, towards the end of the seventeenth century.

The White Saxon measures 1 1-16 inches in diameter. It was also purchased by Augustus the Strong. He is said to have paid 1,000,000 thalers for it. The origin of both celebrated gems is unknown. Probably in the days long gone a band of picturesque freebooters swooped down upon the treasure chest of some potentate and carried the glittering gems to their mountain stronghold, and they were lost to the world. Then, perhaps after a lapse of centuries, they came to light again, wrapped in a veil of mystery, which, if it could be lifted, would make them more famous by romance and association, and enhance their value a thousandfold.

TELL THIS AT DINNER

The diminutive office boy had worked faithfully for a "salary" of $5 a week. He was a subdued little chap, faithful and quiet. Finally, however, he plucked up enough courage to ask his employer.

"How much more would you like?" inquired his employer.

"Well," answered the lad, "I don't think $2 more a week would be too much."

"You are a small boy to be earning $7 a week."

"I suppose I am," he replied. "I know I'm small for my age, but, to tell the truth, since I've worked here I've been so busy I haven't had time to grow."

CHILDREN'S HEALTH

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

Manpower is a great need in the world today. It is needed in our manifold industrial, professional and civic pursuits. In order to render this service at full capacity every boy must keep himself in good trim. Diseases and defects must be avoided, and self-discipline and healthful activities must be relied upon to keep the mind and body in prime condition.

Three great handicaps are defective eyesight, poor teeth and bad feet. Through education and prevention they can be very effectually dealt with.

Next to the vital organs the eye is the most important part of the body and must be mercifully used, for it is a marvelously delicate mechanism. Practically, false eyesight may be regarded as partial blindness.

When reading and writing have good, clear light coming preferably from over the left shoulder. Hold the eyes not less than twelve inches from your work. Do not use the eyes too long continuously—rest them at least every hour. Do not use the eyes much on a rolling train or car. Keep away from places where stone chips, sparks or emery dust is flying. Avoid the common towel and do not rub the eyes with dirty hands.

The mouth is the gateway to the throat and stomach and it pays to keep it clean. Use a medium soft brush, with an up-and-down stroke. The teeth should be examined and cleaned by a dentist once in six months.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The wide, not to say wild, fluctuations of Durant Motor shares on the New York Curb market—they have soared as high as $34 and have tumbled below $40 — have excited widespread comment, naturally, among the hundreds of thousands who are buying Durant securities on the installment plan. Durant shares were not introduced around a point. Money renewed at 5½.

California Petroleum was at a new 1923 high by noon, up nearly 2 points, then reacted. Marine preferred dipped more than a point to a new low. Willys-Overland preferred lost 2 at 60¼. Baldwin Locomotive yielded 2¾. eGneral Electric yielded 3 points o nthe initial sale.

Selling orders predominated at the opening. Free offerings of the oil shares were also attributed to the bankruptcy proceedings against the largest curb market house which dealt heavily in oil issues.

Marland Oil followed California Petroleum into higher ground, but the oldest oil share, Standard Oil of California and Phillips Petroleum each dropping a point.

Mack Truck fell back 2 points and most of the active Steels yielded fractionally. American Hide & Leather preferred dropped 1¼. Underwood Typewriter preferred showed a gain of 2¾, and Colorado Fuel advanced 1. The general list began to sag off towards the end of the first half hour. Baldwin and California Petroleum losing a large part of their initial gains.

American Can, which had advanced ¾ of a point, cancelled its gain and dropped a point below yesterday's final quotation, and Beech-nut Packing dropped 1¾.

Foreign exchange opened irregular. Demand sterling advanced ¼ of a cent to 4.62¾, and French francs dropped 5 points to 5.47 cents. German marks established another new low at .00125 cents, thus falling below the pegged rate of .0014 cents of the Austrian crown for the first time.

MAXWELL Motors A advanced on earnings of $7 a share in April.

WHEELING & Lake Erie April surplus after taxes and fixed charges was $129,677, against deficit of $32,584 in April, 1922.

AMERICAN Smelting reached a new high on the move, reflecting expectation of return of common stock to dividend basis at June 15 meeting. A $4 or $5 rate is talked of.

COLORADO Fuel sported on reports that the company had struck oil on its lease near Trinidad. It is estimated company can earn between $2 and $3 on its stock in the first half of the current year.

ANOTHER version of American Can capital readjustment plan was circulated, to the effect that four shares of new common stock on a $2 dividend basis would be given for one share now outstanding.

NEW STANDARDS IN WOOL DUE JULY 1

Official standards for grades of wool for the United States have been approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, to become effective July 1, 1923, under the U. S. warehouse act. The standards provide for seven grades of wool, as follows: Fine, one-half blood, three-eighths blood one-fourth blood, one-fourth blood, common, and braid. For the purpose of grading, it is provided that wool in the fleece shall be designated by the grade of the largest portion of the fibre of the fleece.

The properties of wool which have been studied are: Diameter of the fibre, length of fibre, spinning quality, shrinkage and foreign matter in wool to be promulgated 1 nthe future.

TRADE GOING ON AT ACTIVE PACE

Mechanics & Metals National Bank of New York says:—Notwithstanding a sharp change that has come over business sentiment recently, trade throughout the country is being conducted at an active pace. Labor is practically all employed, and even at the current elevation of prices the demand for goods continues sufficiently strong to warrant full time and overtime, with high wages offered by employers in an effort to extend their working forces and keep abreast of orders.

That there has been a change in business sentiment every one knows, and, all things considered, it is not a matter of unmixed regret that the public temper should now be different than it was a month or six weeks ago. Then, in the enthusiasm of rising prices, there was some overrapid turnover of goods, there were signs that the situation was getting out of hand and that speculative activity was playing an increasing part in what was under way.

In March and April, and as recently as in the early part of May, the country seemed to be under the impression that prices were embarked on a prolonged upward course and that nothing could halt production or check the forward sweep of commodities. With the opening of June a new state of mind is manifest, the change having been so abrupt as to be restored to business men a cool judgment of affairs and a vision of the situation in its true relations.

Boston Notes

FRAMINGHAM will receive proposals until June 6 for discount of $200,000, dated June 6 and maturing November 22, 1923.

FITCHBURG will receive proposals until June 5 for discount of loan of $200,000, dated June 6 and maturing November 22, 1923.

GENERAL Electric billings are averaging around $25,000,000 a month. In 1922 bookings were $242,733,557.

FOND Creek-Pocahontas capital is 125,000 shares of common of no par value, all outstanding, having market value, at current price of $13 a share, of $1,625,000. Ford paid $8,000,000 for old Fond Creek, not producer of as much high-grade of coal, though output was 150,000 tons greater than estimated annual rate of production of Fond Creek-Pocahontas at end of first year.

FOR first 1923 quarter average grade of ore treated at Utah's mills was 1.17 per cent. copper and the average recovery 83 per cent. as compared with 1.24 per cent. and 79.27 per cent., respectively, for the previous quarter.

PRESIDENT DODGE of Interna-tional paper forecasts increasing rate of paper consumption throughout this year.

NEVADA Consolidated mill is treating 6500 tons of ore daily, with output averaging over 5,000,000 pounds of copper monthly. This is increased as new sections of plant can be turned over for operation.

VENTURA Oil's actual profits in 1922 amounted to $3,000,511, before depreciation and depletion, but after taxes. This is equivalent to $5.06 a share on the 593,016 shares.

PROVIDENCE HAS N. E. RECORD

Boston News Bureau says:—"The statement was recently made by the Boston News Bureau that the International Trust Company of Boston had the largest savings deposit account of any trust company in New England. This is true of Boston but not of New England.

"The Industrial Trust Company of Providence very promptly rises to remark that it has the largest savings deposit account of any trust company in New England and that it is the second largest trust company in New England.

"At the close of business April 3, the Industrial Trust Company's deposits were $99,359,490 and since this time total deposits have increased approximately $1,000,000. Of the above total $57,000,000 represented savings deposits.

NEW LOW MADE BY GREENFIELD TAP & DIE

Greenfield Tap & Die sold at 16, a new year's low, on the Boston Stock Exchange today, contrasting with a 1923 high of 24, when the stock was being boomed as a speculation.

Calumet & Hecla rose 5 points at 370. Copper Range ran off over a point at 23¾.

The market was very quiet and most price changes were small. Fractional gains came in American Woolen preferred, New England Telephone and Walworth Manufacturing.

Issues slightly chipped included American Telephone, Ventura Consolidated Oil, National Leather, Southern States Oil, Swift & Co., North Butte and Amoskeag.

The tone was rather strong on the Boston Curb. Most active issues were Verde Central, up ¼ at 6¾, a record high; Boston Ely, up 3 at 46; Salida, up 7 at

Women Worship Titles

COULD They Stop It? WILL They? It Sets a Bad Example

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

More than a hundred years ago American men—women helping enthusiastically—were driving Englishmen and their King and their titles out of this country.

We THOUGHT over here that we all wanted to be equal. We got up a Constitution wiping out titles. We all decided to be known as Mr., Miss or Mrs. American Citizen. We even forbade by law any creation of titles or other encouragement of European flummery.

What happens now? Many of our women with money, many more without money, rush around in the wake of a title more ardently than the old patriots followed in the wake of a fleeing redcoat.

Some little, insignificant sample of foreign-born humanity, a washed-out, squandered-out, morally, financially and physically bankrupt title nobody comes to America, and our women, usually sane, go out of their minds.

Mothers pursue these worthless titled specimens, daughters dream about them. We are obliged to print their pictures and their names, and portraits of their waistcoats and pantaloons in this newspaper day by day, in order to follow up our rule and "give the people what they want."

Isn't it possible for American women to realise that the title of Count or Prince means absolutely nothing in Europe, and still less in America?

Can't our women understand that what they want to look for in man are health, brains, the ability to look after a family, and especially the conscience that a woman can respect and upon which she can rely?

We all know that the worship of titles, the servile following after rank, is very deeply ingrained in the human mind. For tens of centuries the lucky man or woman has been the one familiar with the powers that held title. To sit as near the throne as possible, and bask in the smiles of the one on the throne, have meant safety, wealth, ease.

Ever since the days of Solomon and his glory, and long before, title has meant power and importance, and title-hunting has been the work of the little human beings.

You can't take out of the human being in five minutes that which has slowly been put into him during fifty centuries. Well-meaning vegetarians know how hard it is to cure themselves of the meat habit that began 30,000 years ago, when one of our ancestors captured an enemy and ate him. But——

Our great American task is to develop in the American people REAL DEMOCRACY. And women—who are really democratic at heart, since in their deepest consciousness they acknowledge only the superiority of good looks or good brains—ought to lead in the fight against snobbish reverence for titles.

Mothers should teach their sons and their daughters that the difference between one man and another, one woman and another—THE ONLY DIFFERENCE THAT COUNTS—is the difference in ability or in goodness.

If you find a hundred American women desperately struggling for "social advancement," trying to know so-called fashionable people who don't want to know them, you will find ninety-nine women discouraged, unhappy—and one more or less successful goose.

Why should any sane woman take an interest, for instance, in a Prince who is about to go home and spend several American millions, or the income from those millions, foolishly and aimlessly?

What is there of this Prince if you take away the foolish, meaningless title? He probably has a nervous system three-quarters worn out. It is certain that his liver amounts to little, his heart and lungs to less. He has very nice manners, undoubtedly, and can jump to put a footstool under a lady's feet as nimbly as a cricket hopping to the top of a shock of hay.

But he CAN'T THINK. He has nothing to offer an earnest woman when his little stock of compliments is exhausted.

And he is a fair sample of other idlers of his kind.

The money that these men take to Europe amounts to nothing. The money, after all, only represents work actually done in America. As long as the work remains here, it doesn't matter very much where the money goes that represents it.

The unfortunate thing is the BAD EXAMPLE, the bad effect on our American life, and especially on American WOMEN.

The men very often are as foolish as the women in these matters. And when our big, successful men go to Europe, THEY are too apt to be found playing the toady with titled people.

The American woman, when disloyal to the American idea of democracy and equality, represents a real danger, BECAUSE SHE IMPRESSES THE CHILDREN AND FORMS THE CHARACTER OF THE NEXT GENERATION.

The man who is to be President of the United States fifty years from now IS SITTING ABOUT AT THIS MOMENT IN HIS LITTLE SHORT TROUSERS, LISTENING EAGERLY TO EVERY WORD THAT HIS MOTHER SAYS.

THAT is the responsibility that rests upon women. They create the next generation first, bringing it into the world with suffering. And then, having created a living creature, they educate it, direct its THOUGHT, make upon its sensitive mind impressions during the first seven years that cannot be wiped out IN SEVENTY.

Women, be sensible, sane, democratic human beings. If you want to respect any title, respect THE TITLE TO HUMAN GRATITUDE THAT MEN AND WOMEN OF REAL POWER HAVE EARNED BY REAL WORK.

When you have in America such a man as Edison, how can you possibly waste thought on a little burnt-out Prince?

When you have about you young men and young women full of possibilities, earnest, energetic, promising, how can you waste your time on the titled idiocies from other countries?

Those that are free from this contagion should fight it. And RIDICULE is the best fighting weapon.

ENDURING INDIAN MOUNDS

ST. LOUIS, June 1.—Earthen mounds built by the Indians in the Mississippi Valley are more enduring than the pyramids of Egypt, according to Dr. Henry M. Whelpley, archeologist and scientist, who is excavating in the mounds at Cahokia, Ill.

"Many persons see no reason for excavations in the mounds except for plunder," he said. "As a matter of fact, very few mounds have ever been opened which yielded anything of commercial value. The American Indians built these mounds chiefly as memorials.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Laws and Right

Editor Boston American:

It is said it requires capital to take the initiative in every move. The assumption seems to be that capital is more important than labor.

Let me put the question another way: Was property made for man or was man made for property? There is not a dollar of capital in the world that was not produced by some one's labor. The clothes I wear, my house, my food, railroads, street cars, paper, ink—in fact, every commodity which helps to make life worth living was produced by labor. Capital represents the surplus of what somebody produced. It is the difference between what somebody produced and what he consumed.

The fact that the law gives one man a great deal of property does not necessarily make it right. The law once called human beings property, and yet we know that it was not right; and we may yet find that a man has no right to possess more than he earns.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Invalid Helped

Editor Helping Hand:

I wish to thank you and also Mrs. D. and Mrs. P. for helping me out in getting clothes. Now that I have got some clothes fit to wear, I'll be able to put a little aside for doctor's bills when they come. I've got to go back to the hospital as soon as I can get straightened out financially.

W. T.

Summer Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you send me the address of some person who would like a voile dress and various other pieces of Summer wear in size 38 or 40 bust, and about 28 waist. Shall doubtless dig up some men's clothing in packing.

MRS. E. M. W.

Thank you. The address of Mrs. W. R., who wears that size and is in need of clothes, will be sent you.

For Mother and Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some pieces of clothing that a needy mother may have, and also some baby clothes, size 1. Mother must not be over five feet four, 110 pounds. Good luck to the Helping Hand.

MRS. C. E. W.

Thank you. These will be very gratefully received somewhere, and your offer will be held for replies.

Coat and Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a coat, dresses and some underwear that will fit a little girl between five and six. If you know of anybody that can use them, I will be glad to give them.

A. G.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. L. R., who has a girl that age in need of clothes.

Bloomers

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a few bloomer dresses, stockings, petticoats and underwear for a girl two or three years old. I wish I had more, you are doing such good work.

MRS. E. C.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. G. H. P., whose little girl needs clothes.

Skirt and Blouse

Editor Helping Hand:

For Mrs. G. M. W. I have a skirt which can be made large, and also a blouse and some underwear. I have some gramaphone records to give away.

MRS. H. J.

Thank you Mrs. G. M. W.'s address has been sent you, and the records will be held for replies.

Maltese Kittens

Editor Helping Hand:

We have two very pretty Maltese kittens which we would be glad to give I. B. B. Please send her our address.

MRS. I. A. S.

There were a great many replies to I. B. B.'s request for a kitten, and I think she has been supplied satisfactorily. Your kind offer, together with the other offers of kittens of various breeds, will be held for replies. Thank you.

Tweed Suit For Boy

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a tweed suit which I wore only a few times. I will be glad to give it to some needy boy fourteen or fifteen years old.

J. E. F. S.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. C. A. P., who has a son that age in need of clothes.

Magazines For Shut-In

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a number of magazines on hand that I would like to give to some shut-in who would like some good reading.

MRS. M. Z.

Thank you. Your offer will be held for replies.

Four Tots Need Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

My husband left me this Winter with four children to care for and another one coming. I take in washing and ironing and make enough to keep the children from starving. I have a kind friend who lets me stay in the basement without rent, although I do all the work I can for her in return. Could you please find me some clothes for my poor little angels? They are 2½, 3½, six and nine years old, and they wear sizes 4½, 5, 9 and 13 shoes. And if I could get some baby clothes or some clothes size 44 and shoes size 4 or 4½ for myself I would be very grateful indeed.

MRS. M. G.

THE SONS OF JUDAS UP TO THEIR OLD TRICKS

By Herbert Kaufman

BANDS and flowers and speeches Memorial Day and forgetfulness the rest of the year. We remember the date, not its significance.

Otherwise crippled, jobless soldiers wouldn't vainly seek places only to meet turndowns because their efforts may not be quite so productive as the skill of sounder men.

In '17 and '18, when they were strong and eager and young lords of tomorrow, maimed veterans didn't pause to compare duty with allotments.

Mike Donaldson, with his congressional medal, empty pockets and frowning future, wasn't compelled to volunteer at the first call to arms.

The blind lads' tapping, piteous canes through blasted lives would give a myriad times their pittance from the nation for just one of their lost eyes.

They were our boys in the Argonne and Flanders, but they belong to the neglect now.

General Ryan, investigating veteran hospitals, detects this slimy trail of greed even there.

Indefensible prices have been paid for supplies, criminal charges are contemplated against seven different dental contractors, and recommendation is made to rake over the whole mucky situation.

The Bible didn't mention that Judas was a father, but rascality of this sort clearly indicates a descending line with an inherited itch for "pieces of silver." Vampires who batten on war wounds are ripe for any treason.

Not a Loving Neighborhood

What this "dog-eat-dog" world needs is a few memorial years. Society can't pay its debts with a few annual hours of music, orations and wreaths.

Fourth of July patriotism and one-meal Christmas baskets liquidate neither community obligation to citizenship nor humanity.

All good soldiers aren't in uniform. Thousands of them are making the fight courageous with scrubbing pails and seamstress needles.

Poor old Susie Clowes found her firing line in the bedroom of a hopelessly invalid mother, whose care drained purse and opportunity and left a gentlewoman at sixty-eight to pick up such pennies as aged spinsters usually manage to locate.

Wednesday, Miss Clowes, homeless and unable to obtain work in Hempstead, Long Island, where she was born and reared, began a two months' residence in the county jail. Pride wouldn't suffer the ignominy of a poorhouse.

Folk thereabout apparently don't love their neighbors as themselves.

Various Knots for Alexander's Sword

The side of the fence on which you're standing usually alters the view.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers seem to have one set of convictions as employes and another as owners of West Virginia collieries. United Mine Workers have called a strike against their union employers because the organization stands pat on its open-shop policy.

When capital and labor begin to think under the same hat judgment prepares for headaches.

The Belgian reparations plan is favorably received at Rome. Germany is asked to deliver 2,400,000,000 gold marks yearly and must agree to pay at least 50,000,000,000 gold marks total indemnity.

Coal mines, railroads and certain agricultural areas are to be semi-nationalized and earnings turned over to the Reparations Commission, together with one-fourth the dividends of all corporations and entire receipts from tobacco, alcohol and sugar monopolies. Bulls caught in china shops must expect to be slaughtered.

Monsieur Poincare, reassured by a sudden and overwhelming vote of confidence, shortly proceeds to Brussels for another wrangle.

Will somebody kindly tell that man the story of Alexander and the Gordian knot?

Turkey Is Weary of the Spit

Turkey, after sizzling on the spit for nine exhausting years, is now anxious to save remaining fat and asks the Near East conference to hurry the signing of treaties so that her army may be disbanded to serve agriculture and industry. The fez is no fool's cap, as Lausanne will long recall.

Czecho-Slovakia, with hand on plow, hammer and loom, will shortly be spending par money.

Vienna, accepting shrewd international guidance, uses wits instead of wails and satisfies foreign bankers that Austria's outlook justifies required financial assistance. America underwrites $25,000,000 of the new loan.

Any other war-cured nation ready to sweat its way back to solvency will find Uncle Sam a big brother. We're always ready to put responsible customers on their feet.

Barbot Brings His Baby Plane

The engine that drove Barbot's glider twice across the English Channel on sixty cents worth of gas can be lifted by a schoolboy. Barbot is here to prove that his baby plane can fly from New York to Chicago without spending more than five dollars on fuel and lubricants.

Willing to give fifteen hundred dollars for such a machine? Agents will soon be selling them for that—and less.

The flivver must choose between instant flight and gradual abandonment.

Henry Ford, producing political sensations and 6,700 automobiles daily, won't continue to tuck $10,000,000 a month in the till unless he anticipates the fast approaching hour when farmers and clerks decide that wings are safer, cheaper and faster than wheels.

Speed will be served.

And enlightenment, too. Baptist ministers meet at Atlantic City and resolve that they shall say what they please without fear of reprimand, provided their congregations are satisfied.

Liberalism gains ground everywhere. Henry S. Delaney resigns as president and trustee of Goucher, a Methodist college at Baltimore, because Dr. Sturgis Ball, instructor of biblical literature, is not dismissed for upholding the fundamentals of evolution.

Mr. Bryan hasn't yet crucified Darwin on his "Cross of Bigotry."
